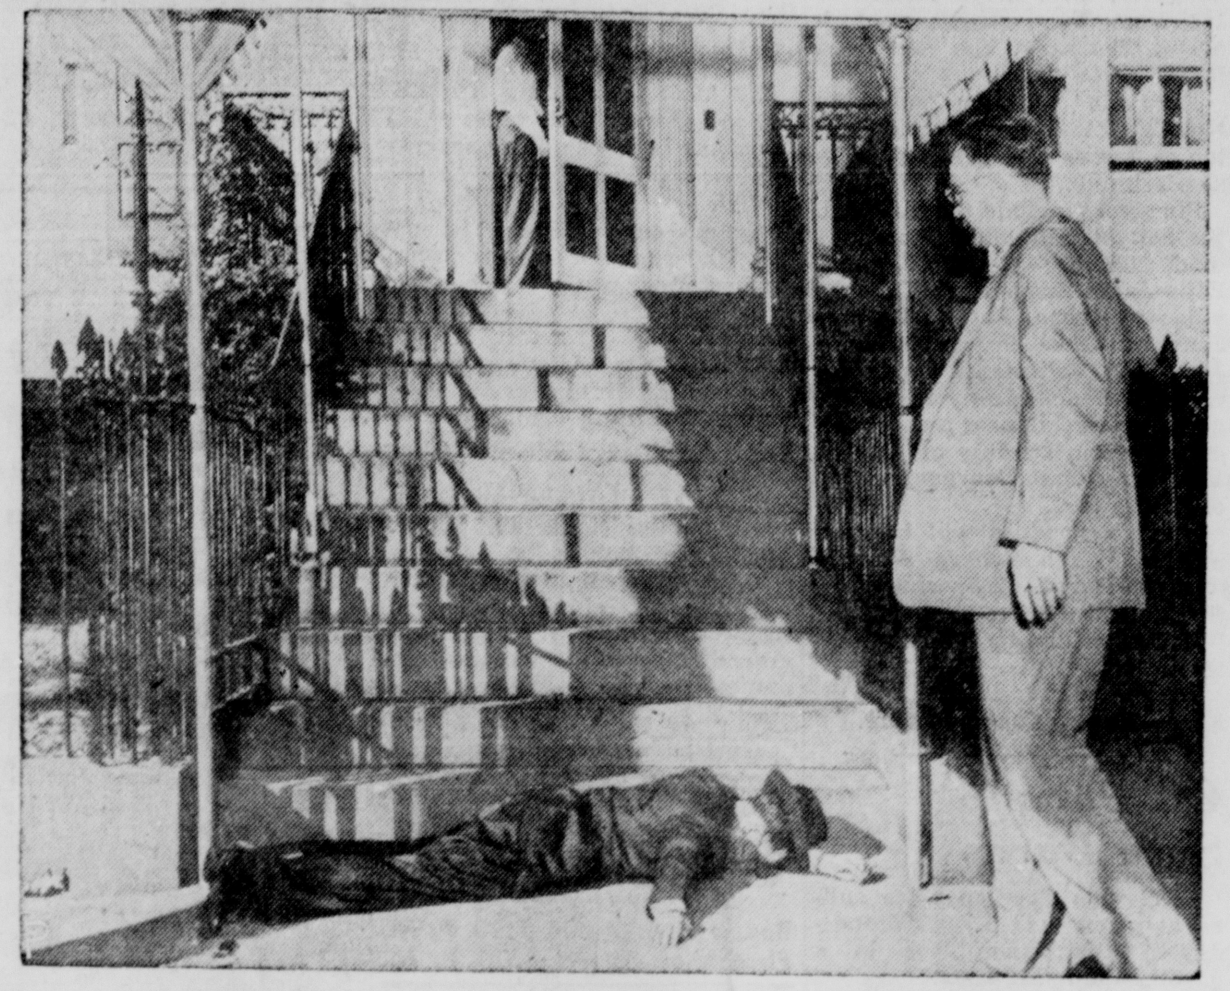
UN Retreats Up To 50 Miles Before Red Smash



GRISELIO TORRESOLA, one of two gunmen attempting to assassinate President Truman, lies dead at the foot of the steps to Blair House, the President's official residence in Washington. The other assailant, Oscar Collazo, 37, New York, was critically wounded. Both were Puerto Ricans.

PENNSYLVANIA AVENUE is packed with people and cars in front of Blair House following the attempted assassination of the President by two Puerto Rican Nationalists.

SENATOR, EX-GOVERNOR SPEAK UP

2 Top Demos Climb Aboard Bandwagon Backing Taft

COLUMBUS, Nov. 2—The Republican bandwagon of Sen. Robert A. Taft had as new passengers today two of the most widely-known Democrats of the state and nation—Sen. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia and Former Gov. George M. White.

Byrd, bitter critic of the New Deal and leader of the so-called Dixiecrat faction in the U. S. Senate, departed from his prepared text before the banquet of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce to laud Taft as contributing "one of the greatest services to America that has been performed in our day" and added:

"I've voted often with Senator Taft in the past, and I hope to continue to have the privilege of voting with him after January first."

And White, sitting at the same table with Byrd and applauding with the remainder of Ohio's business leaders through and at the conclusion of the Virginian's speech, later said:

"I approve heartily of most of the things Senator Byrd said—including his remarks about Senator Taft."

White refused to elaborate his statement, however, declaring that "I'm too old to get into another fight like that."

* * *

WHITE CAME out for the late Wendell Willkie against the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt in the 1944 campaign and was bitterly assailed by his party in Ohio for fence-jumping.

Of the charge that he opposed soldier voting Taft said yesterday: "I did oppose a measure that would have given the soldier the right to vote only for President and vice-president, but my own bill was passed which permitted a soldier to vote the entire ticket of his own state."

Regarding the charge he had opposed a 65-cent minimum wage, Taft said he had supported a 75-cent minimum and opposed an amendment for the lower figure. Regarding public housing, he said he was a "principal sponsor" of such legislation.

Taft also said he favored the continuation of price controls at least another year and until the federal budget is balanced; that he had voted for free mailing privileges for servicemen, and that he had "always supported the principles of an international organization" such as the United Nations.

The last refutation was of the charge he was "against the working man." Taft said the Taft-Hartley law "is the first law which actually protects the individual working man against the arbitrary action of labor union bosses as well as arbitrary employers, and he has come to realize it."

Governor Frank J. Lausche, seeking reelection, declared that the problems of governor were "substantially the same as at home," with limited amounts of money available and demands made by members of the family.

"But there would be one tremendous difference," he continued. "The children frequently will listen to you. But the governor finds the pressure blocs demanding that they get what they want.

* * *

"IT IS THE ability to stand up and not bend to the demands that are being made which counts."

Lausche again urged Ohioans to vote for the man they believed would make the best governor, asserting:

"You are going to perform a sacred duty Election Day. If you believe the election of my opponent will be for the better interest of Ohio and the nation, vote for him. If not, then of course you ought to vote for me."

Truman Takes Walk As Usual Despite Shooting

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—President Truman went for his usual early morning walk on the streets of Washington today, undeterred by yesterday's assassination attempt.

Accompanied by a heavy bodyguard of Secret Service men, four of whom stayed immediately with him, the President walked briskly from Blair House to the Washington Monument and back, over a route that took him about a mile and a half.

He left Blair House at 7 a.m. and returned just before 7:30.

In addition to the Secret Service men, Mr. Truman was accompanied by a small crowd of newsmen and photographers.

To hear the President tell about it, you would think assassination attempts were strictly routine.

He philosophically told close associates:

"You have to expect a thing like that when you are President."

Hemisphere - Wide Probe On After Assassination Try

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2 — A hemisphere - wide investigation slashed today into the conspiracy that exploded with the assassination attempt on President Truman by two wildly-shooting Puerto Rican Nationalists.

U. S. Secret Service agents sought the real leaders of the plot, convinced that the men who tried to shoot their way into Blair House yesterday were only tools of a widespread conspiracy to gain independence for the Caribbean island.

Secret Service Chief U. E. Baughman bluntly charged the abortive assassination try was timed to touch off a revolt in the United States.

One of the conspirators, Griselio Torresola, was killed by guard, and the other, Oscar Collazo, was wounded.

Baughman reported that Collazo, from his hospital bed, said: "We came here for the express purpose of shooting the President."

And an officer wounded in the gunfight quoted one of the pair—he did not say which—as saying "we've come to see the boss" before they started shooting.

* * *

TWO LETTERS from Pedro Albizu Campos, Harvard-educated leader of the Puerto Rico Nationalists were found in Torresola's wallet. The letters expressed the hope that "your mission will be a triumph."

The investigation was centered in Washington, New York and San Juan, Puerto Rico, as tight-lipped Secret Service agents probed into the deep ramifications of the plot.

A third man, identified only as a known leader of the attempted Nationalist coup, was sought in the murderous assault on the President's residence yesterday afternoon which left two dead and three critically wounded.

A roundup of known Puerto Ricans, both in the U. S. and in the Caribbean island possession, connected with the Nationalist conspiracy was relentlessly pursued.

The U. S. government also sought to determine what connection, if any, exists between the Puerto Rican Nationalists and the worldwide Communist movement.

The White House Secret Service and uniformed police detail, whose alertness and hair-trigger shooting cut down the would-be assassins of the President as they clawed their way up the steps toward the Blair House front door, reinforced presidential protection as it has not been done since the mad Guiseppi Zangara tried to kill President Roosevelt in Miami, Fla., in 1933.

An extra cordon of agents and police was thrown around Blair House. Red lanterns winked a warning in the streets for a block in front of the President's residence through the night. All traffic was shut off in Pennsylvania Avenue. Pedestrians were shunted to the other side of the street.

* * *

FIVE ARMED Secret Service agents and police kept constant watch on Oscar Collazo, 37, of 173 Brook Avenue, the Bronx, New York, one of the assailants, in a windowless hospital room.

The hospital "safety" room has only a single small, barred ventilator in the ceiling. An armed policeman kept vigil on a fire escape outside.

The wounded assassin was being questioned at intervals.

Physicians reported Collazo's condition as "very good." He was shot through the left shoulder.

U. S. Commissioner Cyrill Lawrence prepared first degree murder charges to be preferred against the assassin.

Collazo's companion in the fightful shooting affray, Griselio Torresola, lay in the district morgue.

He was killed instantly by a single bullet through the head as he shot down two White House policemen in a sentry box outside the President's residence.

Torresola emptied a magazine from a German P-38 automatic pistol into the two guards before they could draw their own guns to defend themselves.

One of his victims, Pvt. Leslie Coffelt, 40, died at 6:18 p. m. yesterday from wounds in his chest and stomach.

Torresola's other victim, Pvt. Joseph H. Downs, 44, was in

Sentencing Is Awaited

Segee's Return Here Scheduled

Robert Dale Segee, 21-year-old half-Indian who confessed causing the deaths of 172 persons was to be returned to Circleville Thursday to await sentencing Friday to a few short years in prison.

Segee, who confessed, among his other crimes, setting the 1945 Hartford, Conn., circus fire which killed 168 persons, will be sentenced Friday morning only for setting two minor Circleville barn fires, to which he has pleaded guilty. The penalty for such crimes is only two to 20 years on each count.

However, even if served consecutively, he would be eligible for parole in about 40 months, counting time off for good behavior.

Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff was returning Segee to Circleville from Lima State Hospital for the Criminally Insane.

Common Pleas Judge William D. Radcliff is to read Friday's sentences.

* * *

IT SEEMED probable Thursday that Segee would be sent to Mansfield Reformatory, not the state penitentiary, on two consecutive terms.

Connecticut officials, although informed of Segee's confession of the Ringling Bros.-Barnum and Bailey Circus fire, so far have brought no charges against him.

And strangulations which Segee confessed in Maine and New Hampshire probably will not be pressed, since Segee was only a child at the time.

Segee claimed at the time of his arrest that he was compelled to set fires by the vision of a flaming red Indian horseman who appeared to him and would give him no peace until the fires were blazing.

Nonetheless, he was declared legally sane by Lima hospital officials following examinations since his arrest in July.

Connecticut authorities said Thursday today that no action has been taken thus far to take Segee to Hartford in connection with the circus fire.

Connecticut State Police Commissioner Edward J. Hickey would not comment on the possibility of future action against Segee.

The circus fire resulted in fines against Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey, jail terms ranging up to five years for six circus employes and civil suits totaling more than $4 million.

The civil actions against the circus management have been settled.

As for any criminal action in Connecticut, Circleville officials are convinced that eastern state has "washed its hands" of the matter, especially since it jailed the six circus employes for "criminal negligence" in the fire.

Drunken Driver Loses Rights For Entire Life

A 53-year-old Hallsville man will drive no more.

His last experience behind the wheel of an auto was on Oct. 5, but he was drunk then.

And because he was drunk, Dewey Cryder was arrested, which brought him before Judge William D. Radcliff in Pickaway County common pleas court Wednesday.

Judge Radcliff fined him $25, sentenced him to five days in Pickaway jail and suspended his driving right for the rest of his natural life.

Cryder's arrest was made by Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Carl Radcliff on Route 56 about one mile from the Kingston Pike.

Deputy Radcliff explained that the Hallsville man spent the 26 days between arrest and hearing in a Columbus institution where he was treated for alcoholism.

Cryder was taken before Judge Radcliff on an information filed by County Prosecutor Guy Cline. He pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated.

Pranks Bring Fines Of $100

Three Halloween pranksters from near Mt. Sterling and Orient were fined $100 and costs each Wednesday in the court of Magistrate Oscar Root for destruction of property.

They were Robert Meyers, 23, and Charles Bliss, 24, both of near Mt. Sterling, and Lewis Gant, 29, of Orient Route 1.

The men were fined on accusations filed by Carl Rader, who claimed the men threw rocks at his parked auto Tuesday night, breaking two windows and denting the body of the car.

That Was No Dream, Lady; It Was A Big Cat

CINCINNATI, Nov. 2—Police Patrolman William Rader answered a complaint call to suburban Cincinnati early today and was greeted at the door by a woman in night clothing.

The woman said:

"I thought I heard a lion roar, but I know now that it was in my dream. It made me so nervous I just had to call the police to make sure."

But Rader pointed down the street where a large trailer, belonging to the Swain Circus, had broken down en route to Florida.

Inside the trailer were 15 lions, somewhat upset at their unscheduled stop.

The woman collapsed and would have fallen to the ground, except for Officer Rader, who picked her up and carried her inside.

Puerto Rican Revolt Leader Is Arrested

SAN JUAN, Nov. 2—Nationalist Party Leader Pedro Alibizu Campos, reputed instigator of the Puerto Rican rebellion, was arrested today by San Juan police who forced his surrender by hurling tear gas bombs into his home.

Campos was taken to police headquarters along with his bodyguard, Rivera Walker, who also surrendered. The two were immediately subjected to questioning.

Authorities disclosed that more than 20 leaders of both the Nationalist and Communist Parties in Puerto Rico were taken into custody during the night.

Among those arrested were Ceasar Andreu Iglesias, president of the Puerto Rican Communist Party, and Francisco Matos Paoli, secretary of the Nationalist Party.

The seizure of Campos came as part of a sweeping crackdown order by Gov. Luis Munoz Marin against leaders of both the Nationalist and Communist Parties following yesterday's assassination attempt by two Puero Rican Nationalists against President Truman.

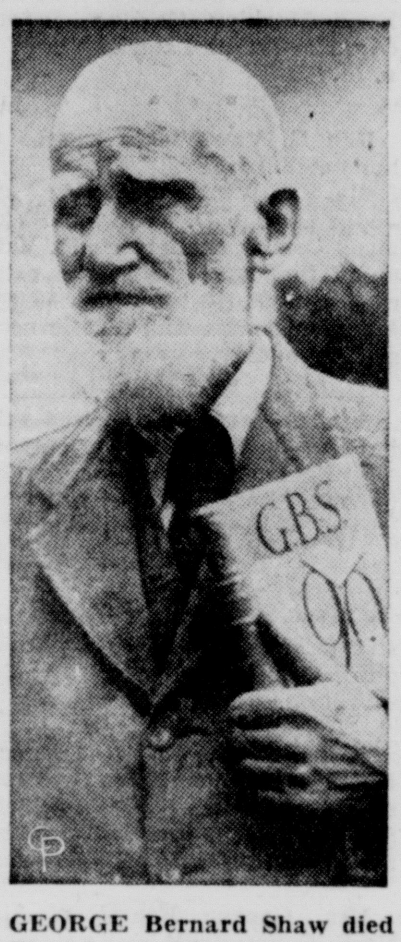
No charges were placed immediately against any of the party officials apprehended. Authorities said only that those arrested had been brought in for questioning.

No Corn Mart Quotas In '51

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—Agriculture Secretary Brannan announced today that the 1951 corn crop will be grown free of federal marketing quotas.

Brannan urged farmers to make "substantial increases" in corn production next year to assure abundant supplies of feed for increased meat output.

The secretary also said that corn acreage allotments, required under the 1949 farm law, would be "set at levels high enough to produce substantial increases next year."



GEORGE Bernard Shaw died Thursday in his home in Ayot St. Lawrence, England, and thus ended a life of 94 years of wit, humor, brilliant literature.

Soviet Due For Defeat

UN Standing Army Approval Expected

FLUSHING MEADOW, Nov. 2—Fifty nations are expected to swamp Soviet opposition today and approve the creation of an international veto-proof army to smash aggression.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky—smiling host last night in Manhattan to the top echelons of UN diplomacy and officialdom—will rip into the American-drafted anti-aggression plan as designed to circumvent the veto by empowering the assembly to call on member governments for troops.

However, the Russian is fighting a lost cause. Forecasts are that the asembly will approve the anti-aggresion plan by the vote of 50 to 5, an impressive score achieved previously after a week of debate in the political committee.

The blueprint to halt Communist aggression in the future without delay and by speedy UN military intervention is formulated as follows:

1. Enables the General Assembly to meet within 24 hours in event of an overt act of war.
2. Establishes a peace obser-

Repercussions After Shooting Are Pondered

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—Diplomatic quarters predicted today that the attempted assassination of President Truman by two Puerto Rican Nationalists may generate serious repercussions through the Western Hemisphere.

The situation is confused by the fact that Puerto Rico is still a part of the United States. No official thought has been given to making the island an independent area or giving it state status.

Officials are concerned about the fact that the attempted assassination was timed with the Nationalist demonstrations in Puerto Rico and coincided with attempted bombing of the Puerto Rican labor office in New York City.

The failure of both the Blair House attack and the abortive Puerto Rican revolt is expected to show the futility of both demonstrations.

However, other American republics are expected to establish more rigid security regulations.

Diplomatic quarters anticipate that the attempted attack on President Truman will encourage entrenched regimes throughout the hemisphere to invoke greater security.

Communists Open New Offensive

2 U.S. Battalions Are Surrounded

SEOUL, Nov. 3 — (Friday) — American and South Korean forces fell back distances ranging up to 50 miles in Northwest Korea Thursday night under a huge counter-offensive by 50,000 or more Red troops.

Reports that two large enemy columns were driving southward toward the battle front forced abandonment of an attempt to rescue about 800 U. S. First Cavalry Division troops, including 150 wounded, trapped two miles northwest of Unsan.

The trapped men were remnants of two First Cavalry battalions. Twenty of the wounded were evacuated from hill positions by helicopter before the rescue move was halted.

A front dispatch from International News Service War Correspondent Lee Ferrero said the encircled Doughboys were "ordered by radio to get out the best way they were able" while other First Cavalry troops adjusted their lines to meet the expected onslaught of the two enemy columns.

Ferrero said a rescue column had fought its way against heavy opposition to within three miles south of Unsan when it was ordered to move into position to meet the oncoming enemy columns.

* * *

INTELLIGENCE reports said one enemy column was moving from south of Huichon and the other from Onjong.

Air reports said there was "considerable movement" all the way back to the Manchurian frontier with heaviest activity on both banks of the Yalu river, which forms the boundary between Korea and Manchuria.

Ferrero reported three enemy divisions, supported by unestimated reserves, were concentrated directly in front of the United Nations lines south of Unsan.

The new enemy offensive included an attack Thursday night, by horse cavalry believed to be an entirely Chinese outfit, but the mounted troops were slashed to bits by tank guns which slaughtered dozens of men and horses.

North and northeast of Pyongyang, the entire United Nations front was withdrawn nine miles south from the area of Usan which was lost to the enemy hordes including numerous Chinese soldiers.

On the western coastal flank, the U. S. 24th Infantry Division, which had projected spearheads northward to within 13 miles of Manchuria's border, pulled back its vanguards as much as 50 miles.

The 24th's withdrawals were necessitated by the mass retreats of the U. S. First Cavalry and the South Korean First, Sixth, Seventh and Eighth Divisions from the Unsan district.

The latter retreats had exposed the over-extended inland flank of the 24th to the danger of enemy enveloping attacks

Price Of War: 27,610 Casualties

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2 — The Defense Department announced today that U. S. casualties in Korea totaled 27,610 as of Oct. 27.

The figure includes 3,934 killed in action, 467 who have died of wounds, 18,879 other wounded, 3,771 who are currently missing, 109 known to have been captured, and 450 who were missing but have either been rescued or have fought their way free.

The Army has suffered 23,987 of the casualties, the Marine Corps 3,142, the Navy 284 and the Airforce 197. Of the deaths, the Army has suffered 3,718, the Marine Corps 575, the Airforce 66 and the Navy 44. Total deaths, including those dead of wounds, is 4,403.

Soviet Due For Defeat

UN Standing Army Approval Expected

FLUSHING MEADOW, Nov. 2—Fifty nations are expected to swamp Soviet opposition today and approve the creation of an international veto-proof army to smash aggression.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky—smiling host last night in Manhattan to the top echelons of UN diplomacy and officialdom—will rip into the American-drafted anti-aggression plan as designed to circumvent the veto by empowering the assembly to call on member governments for troops.

However, the Russian is fighting a lost cause. Forecasts are that the asembly will approve the anti-aggresion plan by the vote of 50 to 5, an impressive score achieved previously after a week of debate in the political committee.

The blueprint to halt Communist aggression in the future without delay and by speedy UN military intervention is formulated as follows:

1. Enables the General Assembly to meet within 24 hours in event of an overt act of war.
2. Establishes a peace obser-

Repercussions After Shooting Are Pondered

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—Diplomatic quarters predicted today that the attempted assassination of President Truman by two Puerto Rican Nationalists may generate serious repercussions through the Western Hemisphere.

The situation is confused by the fact that Puerto Rico is still a part of the United States. No official thought has been given to making the island an independent area or giving it state status.

Officials are concerned about the fact that the attempted assassination was timed with the Nationalist demonstrations in Puerto Rico and coincided with attempted bombing of the Puerto Rican labor office in New York City.

The failure of both the Blair House attack and the abortive Puerto Rican revolt is expected to show the futility of both demonstrations.

However, other American republics are expected to establish more rigid security regulations.

Diplomatic quarters anticipate that the attempted attack on President Truman will encourage entrenched regimes throughout the hemisphere to invoke greater security.

2 U.S. Battalions Are Surrounded

SEOUL, Nov. 3 — (Friday) — American and South Korean forces fell back distances ranging up to 50 miles in Northwest Korea Thursday night under a huge counter-offensive by 50,000 or more Red troops.

Reports that two large enemy columns were driving southward toward the battle front forced abandonment of an attempt to rescue about 800 U. S. First Cavalry Division troops, including 150 wounded, trapped two miles northwest of Unsan.

The trapped men were remnants of two First Cavalry battalions. Twenty of the wounded were evacuated from hill positions by helicopter before the rescue move was halted.

A front dispatch from International News Service War Correspondent Lee Ferrero said the encircled Doughboys were "ordered by radio to get out the best way they were able" while other First Cavalry troops adjusted their lines to meet the expected onslaught of the two enemy columns.

Ferrero said a rescue column had fought its way against heavy opposition to within three miles south of Unsan when it was ordered to move into position to meet the oncoming enemy columns.

* * *

INTELLIGENCE reports said one enemy column was moving from south of Huichon and the other from Onjong.

Air reports said there was "considerable movement" all the way back to the Manchurian frontier with heaviest activity on both banks of the Yalu river, which forms the boundary between Korea and Manchuria.

Ferrero reported three enemy divisions, supported by unestimated reserves, were concentrated directly in front of the United Nations lines south of Unsan.

The new enemy offensive included an attack Thursday night, by horse cavalry believed to be an entirely Chinese outfit, but the mounted troops were slashed to bits by tank guns which slaughtered dozens of men and horses.

North and northeast of Pyongyang, the entire United Nations front was withdrawn nine miles south from the area of Usan which was lost to the enemy hordes including numerous Chinese soldiers.

On the western coastal flank, the U. S. 24th Infantry Division, which had projected spearheads northward to within 13 miles of Manchuria's border, pulled back its vanguards as much as 50 miles.

The 24th's withdrawals were necessitated by the mass retreats of the U. S. First Cavalry and the South Korean First, Sixth, Seventh and Eighth Divisions from the Unsan district.

The latter retreats had exposed the over-extended inland flank of the 24th to the danger of enemy enveloping attacks

Price Of War: 27,610 Casualties

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2 — The Defense Department announced today that U. S. casualties in Korea totaled 27,610 as of Oct. 27.

The figure includes 3,934 killed in action, 467 who have died of wounds, 18,879 other wounded, 3,771 who are currently missing, 109 known to have been captured, and 450 who were missing but have either been rescued or have fought their way free.

The Army has suffered 23,987 of the casualties, the Marine Corps 3,142, the Navy 284 and the Airforce 197. Of the deaths, the Army has suffered 3,718, the Marine Corps 575, the Airforce 66 and the Navy 44. Total deaths, including those dead of wounds, is 4,403.

"WE WERE VERY badly hurt," declared Maj. Gen. Hobart R. Gay, commander of the U. S. First Cavalry Division. He added:

"But we can establish a solid line of defense, provided our right flank holds."

Ferrero, in a dispatch from the northwest front received at 10:35 Thursday night, quoted Gay as saying South Korean troops on the First Cavalry's right flank "are regrouping."

The general added that "a great number" of these South Korean units were "still intact."

Ferrero's field dispatch told of vicious hand-to-hand fighting in which the Reds charged straight into American positions after enveloping the flanks.

The correspondent said one First Cavalry outfit had only 18 survivors out of its 47 men after losing two tanks, 12 mortars and an artillery battery.

Below Unsan, which is 65 miles north of the Allied-held North Korean Communist capital of Pyongyang, the hard-pressed American First Cavalry Division and the four South Korean divisions fought bitterly to establish a new defense line.

The line they tried to stabilize runs from Chongju near the Yellow Sea coast 22 miles northeast through Taechon. Then it dips 29 miles to the east-southeast to Kujang on the Congchon river.

He was sentenced by Judge William D. Radcliff in Pickaway County common pleas court last June 3 after he pleaded guilty to malicious destruction of property by burning.

Judge Radcliff originally suspended the sentence after Jarrel was found psychotic, had him sent to the Lima hospital.

New American Legion Post Being Formed

A new American Legion post is being formed in Ashville.

Eugene Wilson was named temporary commander of the new post Wednesday during an organization meeting in Ashville high school.

The organization meeting was attended by a large number of eligible war veterans from the Ashville community who voted in favor of forming a new post.

Other officers elected temporarily to serve under Wilson are Doyle Calvert, adjutant, and Ira Hoover, finance officer.

Wilson said the group is to apply for its charter in the near future and that several committees for the organization of the unit have been appointed.

County Prosecutor Guy Cline has been appointed to formulate a constitution and bylaws for the new group while a committee headed by Harry Hedges and including John Hoover and James Hickman has been named to select a name for the post.

WARREN BASTIAN was elected chairman of a committee to seek future meeting places for the group. Other members of the committee are Ellis Cline and Herbert Seymour.

Leonard Campbell and Nelson Bell Jr. were named to the refreshment committee.

Wilson said the group has laid tentative plans to sponsor an Armistice Day parade Nov. 11 in Ashville with presentation of a flag and featuring a speaker.

The new organization is slated to meet again next Wednesday in the Ashville high school to recruit more eligible veterans from the community into the post.

Assassins Are Foiled

Emergency hospital in a critical condition from wounds in the head, chest and abdomen.

The third police victim of the mad burst of firing as the two assassins sought to shoot their way into the President's house, Pvt. Donald T. Birdzell, 41, suffered multiple wounds in both legs.

* * *

IT WAS BIRDZELL who, as Collazo opened fire on him without warning, ran out into Pennsylvania Avenue to draw the line of fire away from Blair House, and engaged in a point-blank gun duel with the assassin.

Shot through both knees, Birdzell kept on firing after he had crumpled to the pavement.

Secret Service Agent Floyd Boring, a 250-pound six-footer who is the President's driver, and Pvt. Joseph Davidson, who were on guard in the east sentry box nearest the White House on Pennsylvania Avenue, ended the mad 30-second shooting affray with bursts from their own guns.

Collazo, blood streaming down his shirt front, was cut down as he attempted to race up the short flight of steps to the President's door, and rolled senseless down the stair to the sidewalk, his smoking luger still clutched in his right hand.

Torresola, shot through the head from ear to ear, pitched in a welter of blood over the low hedge onto the tiny lawn fronting Lee House on the west side of Blair House.

He, too, had sought to climb the staircase to the front door of Lee House.

The two houses, erected side by side, form a single residence in their interior.

President Truman was taking an after-lunch nap in a second floor bedroom as the wild fusillade of shots blasted the sunny calm of the afternoon.

The President, clad in his underclothes, leaped to the window and looked out at the height of the shooting.

The President was unscathed, but bullets ripped into the front of the residence.

The President then calmly dressed and left Blair House by a rear entrance for Arlington Cemetery to speak at the unveiling of a statue honoring Sir John Dill, wartime head of the British defense mission in Washington.

All Pickaway Schools To Be Closed Friday

All Pickaway County schools are to be closed Friday so that their teachers may attend a meeting in Columbus.

The schools, 17 in the county system and five in Circleville, are members of the Central Ohio Teachers' Association, which is to hold its 79th annual meeting Friday in Columbus.

The local teachers will be among 9,000 central Ohio instructors expected to attend the all-day session.

Several of the county instructors and school administrators are to play key roles in the conference.

They are Walter L. Harris, County Superintendent George D. McDowell, Kenneth Craig, Miss Jeanette Reichelderfer and Robert Moyer.

Principal speakers during the program will be Dr. John Furbay, author and world traveler, and Dr. Kenneth MacFarland, superintendent of schools in Topeka, Kans.

School youngsters in both county and city systems will be dismissed for the day, their last vacation until Thanksgiving.

Warmish Fall Weather Brings Spring 'Sponge'

The weatherman surely has played hob with Mother Nature this Fall.

A workman in Circleville Container Corp. was going about his duties Wednesday when he literally "stumbled" onto a sponge mushroom.

Gerald Miller of the plant offices said the man had been working near the coal storage pile when he spied the mushroom.

Miller said the fungus was "good-sized," measuring nearly four inches tall.

"We thought at first it might have been a mushroom which had dried up last Spring and had been preserved," he added, "but it was still moist when it was picked."

The unusually warm Spring-like weather during the last several weeks was believed responsible for the prank by Mother Nature. The sponge mushroom is only rarely discovered in Pickaway County after late May.

DEATHS and Funerals

MRS. STEPHEN JONES

Mrs. Carrie Jane Trimble Jones, 76, wife of Arthur Stephen Jones, died in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Lloyd Jonnes at 151 West Main street at 9:30 a. m. Thursday. She had been ill for three years.

Born in Monroe Township Nov. 21, 1873, she was the daughter of James and Dorothy Dawson Trimble.

Survivors include the husband, the daughter in whose home she died, another daughter, Mrs. Effie Janet Boggs of McConnelsville; two sons, Arthur Trimble Jones of Crown City and Richard Jones of Saltcreek Township; eight grandchildren and two great grandchildren; two brothers, Marion Trimble of East Mill street and George Trimble of Milwaukee.

Private services will be held in Defenbaugh Funeral Home with the Rev. L. C. Sherburne officiating at 1 p. m. Saturday.

Burial will be in Forest cemetery.

Friends may call after 2 p. m. Friday in the funeral home.

Oil Pumping Shed Burns

Circleville firemen were called at about 4:45 p. m. Wednesday to extinguish a blaze in a gasoline pumping shed.

Fire Chief Talmer Wise said the fire started at the Given Oil Co. bulk station pumping shed while a workman was filling a truck.

He said the blaze was caused when fumes from the fuel were ignited by an electric motor.

Firemen fought the fire nearly a half hour. Wise said the workman escaped injury, but that the shed was badly damaged and that paint was burned from the gas truck.

Clinic Patient Nabbed Here

A 58-year-old escapee from Chillicothe Veterans' hospital was captured here Wednesday by Pickaway County authorities.

Deputy Mack Wise said he took the man in custody in a field southwest of Circleville.

"He said he was planning to walk cross-country to Mansfield," Wise said, "but when I found him he was too tired to try to run. He merely turned around and started to walk back through the field."

The man, a veteran of World War I, was returned to the hospital Thursday.

Mainly About People

ONE MINUTE PULPIT

There are social theories that exclude God, that sound quite convincing. The only trouble is that when carried into practice the fraudulent claims of general well being and individual advantage degenerate into universal slavery when tested by actual experience. Prove all things, hold fast that which is good.—1 Thess. 5:21.

Man Is Sent To Lima Clinic

John Jarrel, 55, has been transferred from Lima state hospital to Ohio Penitentiary to serve a 1-2 years sentence.

He was sentenced by Judge William D. Radcliff in Pickaway County common pleas court last June 3 after he pleaded guilty to malicious destruction of property by burning.

Judge Radcliff originally suspended the sentence after Jarrel was found psychotic, had him sent to the Lima hospital.

New American Legion Post Being Formed

A new American Legion post is being formed in Ashville.

Eugene Wilson was named temporary commander of the new post Wednesday during an organization meeting in Ashville high school.

The organization meeting was attended by a large number of eligible war veterans from the Ashville community who voted in favor of forming a new post.

Other officers elected temporarily to serve under Wilson are Doyle Calvert, adjutant, and Ira Hoover, finance officer.

Wilson said the group is to apply for its charter in the near future and that several committees for the organization of the unit have been appointed.

County Prosecutor Guy Cline has been appointed to formulate a constitution and bylaws for the new group while a committee headed by Harry Hedges and including John Hoover and James Hickman has been named to select a name for the post.

* * *

WARREN BASTIAN was elected chairman of a committee to seek future meeting places for the group. Other members of the committee are Ellis Cline and Herbert Seymour.

Leonard Campbell and Nelson Bell Jr. were named to the refreshment committee.

Wilson said the group has laid tentative plans to sponsor an Armistice Day parade Nov. 11 in Ashville with presentation of a flag and featuring a speaker.

The new organization is slated to meet again next Wednesday in the Ashville high school to recruit more eligible veterans from the community into the post.

Assassins Are Foiled

Emergency hospital in a critical condition from wounds in the head, chest and abdomen.

The third police victim of the mad burst of firing as the two assassins sought to shoot their way into the President's house, Pvt. Donald T. Birdzell, 41, suffered multiple wounds in both legs.

* * *

IT WAS BIRDZELL who, as Collazo opened fire on him without warning, ran out into Pennsylvania Avenue to draw the line of fire away from Blair House, and engaged in a point-blank gun duel with the assassin.

Shot through both knees, Birdzell kept on firing after he had crumpled to the pavement.

Secret Service Agent Floyd Boring, a 250-pound six-footer who is the President's driver, and Pvt. Joseph Davidson, who were on guard in the east sentry box nearest the White House on Pennsylvania Avenue, ended the mad 30-second shooting affray with bursts from their own guns.

Collazo, blood streaming down his shirt front, was cut down as he attempted to race up the short flight of steps to the President's door, and rolled senseless down the stair to the sidewalk, his smoking luger still clutched in his right hand.

Torresola, shot through the head from ear to ear, pitched in a welter of blood over the low hedge onto the tiny lawn fronting Lee House on the west side of Blair House.

He, too, had sought to climb the staircase to the front door of Lee House.

The two houses, erected side by side, form a single residence in their interior.

President Truman was taking an after-lunch nap in a second floor bedroom as the wild fusillade of shots blasted the sunny calm of the afternoon.

The President, clad in his underclothes, leaped to the window and looked out at the height of the shooting.

The President was unscathed, but bullets ripped into the front of the residence.

The President then calmly dressed and left Blair House by a rear entrance for Arlington Cemetery to speak at the unveiling of a statue honoring Sir John Dill, wartime head of the British defense mission in Washington.

All Pickaway Schools To Be Closed Friday

All Pickaway County schools are to be closed Friday so that their teachers may attend a meeting in Columbus.

The schools, 17 in the county system and five in Circleville, are members of the Central Ohio Teachers' Association, which is to hold its 79th annual meeting Friday in Columbus.

The local teachers will be among 9,000 central Ohio instructors expected to attend the all-day session.

Several of the county instructors and school administrators are to play key roles in the conference.

They are Walter L. Harris, County Superintendent George D. McDowell, Kenneth Craig, Miss Jeanette Reichelderfer and Robert Moyer.

Principal speakers during the program will be Dr. John Furbay, author and world traveler, and Dr. Kenneth MacFarland, superintendent of schools in Topeka, Kans.

School youngsters in both county and city systems will be dismissed for the day, their last vacation until Thanksgiving.

Warmish Fall Weather Brings Spring 'Sponge'

The weatherman surely has played hob with Mother Nature this Fall.

A workman in Circleville Container Corp. was going about his duties Wednesday when he literally "stumbled" onto a sponge mushroom.

Gerald Miller of the plant offices said the man had been working near the coal storage pile when he spied the mushroom.

Miller said the fungus was "good-sized," measuring nearly four inches tall.

"We thought at first it might have been a mushroom which had dried up last Spring and had been preserved," he added, "but it was still moist when it was picked."

The unusually warm Spring-like weather during the last several weeks was believed responsible for the prank by Mother Nature. The sponge mushroom is only rarely discovered in Pickaway County after late May.

DEATHS and Funerals

MRS. STEPHEN JONES

Mrs. Carrie Jane Trimble Jones, 76, wife of Arthur Stephen Jones, died in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Lloyd Jonnes at 151 West Main street at 9:30 a. m. Thursday. She had been ill for three years.

Born in Monroe Township Nov. 21, 1873, she was the daughter of James and Dorothy Dawson Trimble.

Survivors include the husband, the daughter in whose home she died, another daughter, Mrs. Effie Janet Boggs of McConnelsville; two sons, Arthur Trimble Jones of Crown City and Richard Jones of Saltcreek Township; eight grandchildren and two great grandchildren; two brothers, Marion Trimble of East Mill street and George Trimble of Milwaukee.

Private services will be held in Defenbaugh Funeral Home with the Rev. L. C. Sherburne officiating at 1 p. m. Saturday.

Burial will be in Forest cemetery.

Friends may call after 2 p. m. Friday in the funeral home.

Oil Pumping Shed Burns

Circleville firemen were called at about 4:45 p. m. Wednesday to extinguish a blaze in a gasoline pumping shed.

Fire Chief Talmer Wise said the fire started at the Given Oil Co. bulk station pumping shed while a workman was filling a truck.

He said the blaze was caused when fumes from the fuel were ignited by an electric motor.

Firemen fought the fire nearly a half hour. Wise said the workman escaped injury, but that the shed was badly damaged and that paint was burned from the gas truck.

Clinic Patient Nabbed Here

A 58-year-old escapee from Chillicothe Veterans' hospital was captured here Wednesday by Pickaway County authorities.

Deputy Mack Wise said he took the man in custody in a field southwest of Circleville.

"He said he was planning to walk cross-country to Mansfield," Wise said, "but when I found him he was too tired to try to run. He merely turned around and started to walk back through the field."

The man, a veteran of World War I, was returned to the hospital Thursday.

FOR STATE SENATOR
10th District — Franklin and Pickaway Counties

| X | GRACE R. CLIFTON |

Grace Reichelderfer Clifton, a native of Saltcreek Township, Pickaway County, received her education in the public schools and in teacher training at Ohio University. She then taught in the Walnut and Saltcreek Township Schools.

Mrs. Clifton is the widow of Dr. John L. Clifton, former State Director of Education and a staunch friend of the Schools of Pickaway County, and the mother of three children. She has two farmer brothers and four sisters now residing in Pickaway County.

Because of her close association with Pickaway County, Mrs. Clifton realizes both the rural and urban problems of the county. She can and will represent YOU in the Ohio Senate.

Inflation Ranks With Red Menace As U.S. 'Enemy'

TOPEKA, Nov. 2 — Inflation ranks with Communism as an enemy of the American people, says Arthur Capper, a former United States senator from Kansas.

He declared the stage is set for inflation. It would be slow at first, then runaway inflation, the kind that means printing-press money, practically without value.

"Inflation can rob you of your farm," Capper said. "It can wipe out your savings and destroy the value of your life insurance. It can undermine your business, make your old age pension valueless, reduce your standard of living, wreck the dreams of your children and cost you economic and political freedom. It will not spill your blood but it will crush your spirit. It will not bomb your cities but it will fill your life with tragedy and despair.

"Inflation is treacherous. It gets out of hand easily. Spendthrift governments like to play around with it. Our dollar once was worth 100 cents. Now it is worth only 60 cents. The dollar you had before the Korean fighting started will not buy as much as it did then.

* * *

"WHEN A NATION gets heavily in debt, when it is spending more money than it collects in taxes, when it is borrowing from banks instead of from the people to meet its deficits, the pressure for more inflation becomes acute. We are faced with a long period of heavy defense spending, perhaps as much as 50 billion dollars a year, even if there is no war with Russia. Our federal debt is more than 250 billion."

Capper says this enemy within our midst should be stopped now.

He offers these suggestions:

"1—Stop all government spending not essential to our war effort.

"2—Hike taxes substantially all across the board.

"3—Impose stiff restrictions to discourage all inflationary borrowing.

"4—Crack down on government agencies to eliminate waste and graft from all federal spending.

"5—Encourage citizens to put more of their money into government bonds. A hike in the interest rate on these bonds might be justified.

"6—Urge laborers to work harder and longer to produce more goods and help keep prices down."

4 County 4-H Leaders Plan Attending Meet

Four Pickaway County 4-H clubbers will leave Friday for Jackson's Mill, W. Va., where an Ohio-West Virginia Young Men and Women's conference will be held over the weekend.

Jean Rose and Cook Metzger of Deercreek Township, Barbara Defenbaugh of Saltcreek and Art Dick of Monroe will represent Pickaway County at the conference.

They will be accompanied by Miss Genevieve Alley, home demonstration agent, and Merle Thomas, associate county agent.

The conference will begin at supper time Friday. A one-act play festival will be presented by West Virginia young people Friday night.

Keynote address will be delivered by C. M. Ferguson, Ohio Extension Service director. Merril Davis, music instructor in Jackson schools, will serve as song leader.

Young men and women may select a Saturday class from among the following:

* * *

RECREATION Leadership, Song Leading, How to Lead a Discussion, Planning the Monthly Meeting and Office Training.

A class for extension agents will be under the direction of E. W. Aiton of Federal Extension Service, Washington D. C.

On Saturday afternoon "A Panel of International Friends" will feature the program. Foreign students will discuss farming in other countries.

Assisting at the conference will be C. C. Lang, J. P. Schmidt and R. B. Tom of Ohio State university extension department.

Ohio To Receive $5 Million More In Federal Aid

COLUMBUS, Nov. 2—Governor Lausche announced today federal approval of an Ohio plan to give the state approximately $5 million more per year in federal public assistance funds.

The governor said the Social Security Administration has tentatively approved Ohio's plan for qualification for increased allotments under recent amendments to the Social Security Act.

Lausche had been pressured by some groups to call a special session of the legislature to amend Ohio's law so the state would be eligible for the increased benefits under the new federal program.

Lausche rejected the special session demand and today the governor cited the SSA action as proving he was correct in his assumption that Ohio could qualify under the present law together with an executive order by him as governor.

Of the additional $5 million Ohio is expecting to receive annually, the state will receive $2.5 million and the local subdivisions the other half-share. Lausche said Ohio is one of the first states to qualify for the increased grants.

Illegal Doctor Trial Delayed

CLEVELAND, Nov. 2—Sentencing of Dr. Agnes H. Winterich, convicted on a charge of illegal practice of medicine, has been postponed by Municipal Judge James T. Cassidy until Nov. 13, when a motion for a new trial will be filed.

A jury of eight women and four men deliberated four hours late yesterday before finding that the limited practitioner dispensed and advised the use of drugs in violation of her drugles certificates in chiropractic, mechanotherapy and electrotherapy. Conviction carries a fine of $25 to $500.

Happy Is The Day When Backache Goes Away . . . .

As we get older, stress and strain, over-exertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Huge Supply To Hold Prices On Poultry, Eggs

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2 — The Agriculture Department says that the huge poultry and egg supply in prospect for next year will put a damper on rising prices.

Prices of poultry and eggs will go up, but the large supplies are expected to keep them from going as high as prices for some other food products.

Total output of the poultry industry next year is expected to be slightly lower than production this year. In 1950, five billion dozen eggs will be produced, one and a fifth billion chickens and 45 million turkeys.

Supplies of eggs and poultry for consumers in 1951 probably will exceed the per capita consumption rates of this year. The department says people are expected to eat about 384 eggs, 26 pounds of chicken and about five pounds of turkey apiece this year.

Letter To The Editor

The Circleville Herald encourages letters to the editor on pertinent subjects of local interest. However, unsigned letters will be disregarded. Nom de plume will be used if requested.

Editor, The Herald:

There has been much talk concerning the proposed bond issue for building a new physical education building in Circleville.

I should like to ask the parents and citizens of Circleville the following questions:

1. In the past year have you inspected the room that the students of Circleville must call their physical education room?

2. Do you think that the shower and locker rooms are large enough—well enough heated and ventilated to provide for 650 students?

3. Do you feel that physical education instructors can put on a physical education program that would have the approval of the State Department of Education with the present facilities of your school?

Parents and citizens of Circleville, you have always been willing in the past to vote money for our schools when you were advised of the need. Again this year the need is great. I feel certain you will help the citizens of tomorrow by voting for the bond issue.

Tired Of Hiding, Man Surrenders

CLEVELAND, Nov. 2—A 47-year-old convict who escaped from London Prison Farm two months ago, was held by Cleveland police today, pending his return to the penal institution.

Arnold Withrow, sentenced in 1944 for grand larceny in Akron, surrendered yesterday to Chief Deputy Sheriff Joseph F. Sweeney and Deputy Sheriff Joseph Kalos in a bar.

Withrow gave himself up because he said he was tired of being a fugitive.

Oil Men Seek High State Power

COLUMBUS, Nov. 2 — The Ohio Petroleum Marketers Association has proposed that the Ohio Program Commission set up a nine-man committee to rule on state highway department policies.

Meeting yesterday in Columbus, the marketeers group suggested that the commission be authorized to hire the highway department director instead of having the governor appoint him.

Sketches Of Major Candidates

Congress-At-Large Post Contested

Editor's Note: Following is another in a series of articles on the candidates seeking state office Nov. 7. Today, the candidates for congressman-at-large.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 2—Regardless of who wins next Tuesday's election for congressman-at-large, Ohio is certain to have a Cleveland man with experience in the position.

Both Rep. Stephen M. Young, the Democrat who now holds the post, and George H. Bender, the Cuyahoga County Republican boss, have served as congressman-at-large. In fact, they served together back in the days when Ohio had two congressmen elected at large.

At present, Ohio elects 22 district congressmen and only one at large. Bender won in 1944 and 1946, but was upset by Young in the Democratic landslide of '48.

* * *

THE TWO ARE different in appearance and manner as well as political faith. Young is slim and soft-spoken; Bender large, florid and has never been known to need a public address system.

Here, briefly, are the life stories of the two:

Stephen M. Young, 61-year-old lawyer, was born in Norwalk and received degrees from Kenyon college and Western Reserve university law school. He won renomination without opposition in May and currently is serving his fourth congressional term.

He served as an assistant Cuyahoga County prosecutor and as a special assistant Ohio attorney general, spent two terms in the Ohio General Assembly from 1913 to 1917, and was the Democratic nominee for attorney general in 1922 and an unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor in 1930.

He has an impressive war record garnered in both world wars. In the last conflict he served 37 months, including 27 months in the North Africa and Italian campaigns.

In 1945, he became Allied military governor of Reggio Emilia in Italy. He holds many decorations and a commission as lieutenant colonel in the Reserve.

He is married and has two sons and a daughter.

George H. Bender, 54-year-old insurance man, was a congressman for ten consecutive years until beaten by Young in '48. He is widely known as the boss of the Cleveland Republican Party, which he has headed since 1938.

Bender was a state senator for ten years—five terms—before going to Congress for his first term.

He is a native of Cleveland and a product of Cleveland's public school system. He was general manager and advertising manager for a large department store before starting his own insurance company.

Bender is married and has two daughters.

Antibiotic Use Can Bring Harm, Ear Men Claim

CLEVELAND, Nov. 2—American ear specialists are becoming increasingly wary concerning the use of antibiotic and other modern drugs which they believe may cause deafness and loss of life.

According to surgeons attending the annual convention of the United States chapter, International College of Surgeons, such drugs are being used unwisely by many general practitioners today.

Dr. Samuel F. Kelley of New York told 2,500 delegates to the Cleveland meeting that antibiotics were often used indiscriminately by doctors for pains in the ear without consulting an ear specialist until "irreversible changes," including deafness, had occurred.

"Often the antibiotic results in relief from pain and fever but the disease progresses in the ear and mastoid," Dr. Kelley said.

"This masking of the infection gives the physician and family a false sense of security only to learn later that there is a hole in the drum, a discharging ear, and impaired hearing which may necessitate immediate operation."

Dr. Hugh Kuhn of Hammond, Ind., reported that he noted twice as many cases of catarrhal otitis during the last ten years, while people were being overwhelmed with mass use of antibiotics for anything from bad colds to broken legs."

HIGHER PRICES PREDICTED

Virginia Democrat Raps Lack Of Economic Curbs

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2 — A Senate Democrat has lashed the administration for failure to "get tough" on the economic front and has predicted still higher prices and termed futile any post-election session of Congress.

Sen. Roberton, (D) Va., a member of the Senate Banking Committee, issued the three-charge blast.

Robertson said he fears that the administration does not clearly appreciate the sacrifices demanded by the world situation or "has not adequately evaluated the response of the American peope to an appeal to their hardness rather than to their softness."

The Virginian reiterated his demand for the immediate imposition of price and wage controls.

In predicting still higher prices, he said cost increases for manufacturers and wholesalers are not yet reflected in retail prices.

Robertson shrugged off as "futile" any session of Congress between now and Jan. 1, regardles of whether the President calls lawmakers back before Nov. 27. He said all it would amount to would be a "political talkfest."

* * *

THE DEMOCRAT said this country now faces an "inflationary crisis." He said these are the hard facts:

"Since the Korean war started, bank credit has been expanded by the all time sum of $4 billion.

"Consumer credit has been increasing at the rate of $500 million a month.

"Despite an all-time high earned income, the cashing of E Bonds and the withdrawal of savings accounts have thrown approximately $1 billion into the market places.

"Wage increases are in the making which will measurably contribute to the inflationary spiral.

"If Congress should pass an excess profit tax intead of imposing a definite surtax geared to produce a specified sum of new revenue, that program likewise would be inflationary."

Robertson added that the fact Americans spent $500 million more for liquor last year than they did for automobiles and that liquor sales this year are running at about the same level "does not indicate a program of austerity nor a realization of the acuteness of the inflationary crisis confronting us."

He said liquor sales last year reached $8.5 billion while net auto sales were $8 billion.

Sketches Of Major Candidates

Congress-At-Large Post Contested

Editor's Note: Following is another in a series of articles on the candidates seeking state office Nov. 7. Today, the candidates for congressman-at-large.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 2—Regardless of who wins next Tuesday's election for congressman-at-large, Ohio is certain to have a Cleveland man with experience in the position.

Both Rep. Stephen M. Young, the Democrat who now holds the post, and George H. Bender, the Cuyahoga County Republican boss, have served as congressman-at-large. In fact, they served together back in the days when Ohio had two congressmen elected at large.

At present, Ohio elects 22 district congressmen and only one at large. Bender won in 1944 and 1946, but was upset by Young in the Democratic landslide of '48.

MORE SAVINGS NEEDED

IT IS encouraging to note that President Truman—following the directive of Congress—has whacked $580,000,000 of nondefense spending from the budget. Included are such items as government hospitals, rural electrification and telephone loans, farm housing loans, civil functions on military reservations and reclamation.

So far, so good. Anything that can be reduced outside the preparedness field—with due attention to economy there—is of paramount importance. But expert economists estimate that much more could be done. Economic loans to Europe could be greatly reduced, as most of the nations there are now recovered. Public housing could be eliminated. Private industry is taking care of that.

We could cut considerably off the crop loan program because there is very little need of price propping. Most of all we need elimination of some bureaus and merger of others not only to rid ourselves of excess government workers but the money the bureaus spend. It is still true that we could cut off $3,000,000,000 of government spending by efficient organization, as the Hoover Commission showed.

America is going to need these savings desperately in the coming years. As our budgets soar upward and upward, far beyond any possible tax revenue, they will be a menace to the foundations of America itself. Only a policy of strict economy that keeps the budget balanced, or very nearly balanced, will avert the threat.

BINS ARE FULL

THE nation's farm crops, as now estimated at the close of the growing season, will be slightly better than the eight-year average, a remarkable fact when it is remembered those years showed exceptionally high production figures.

Only corn fell below previous estimates, being off 45,000,000 bushels from forecasts, but still yielding a thumping 3,117,937,000 total. Other but less important crops also were subject to discount. Another promising Winter wheat crop has gone into the ground under most favorable circumstances.

Food continues to be the most important factor in world affairs. There are still millions of hungry people in the world, and the possibility of war will increase the number. With few exceptions, these unfortunates will look to the United States for food. It is fortuitous that this country's bins are full to overflowing, making it possible to share this abundance with those who will be in need.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

So I went to a party of Red-baiters—not the Johnny-come-latelies who swear that they were never Pinkoes and hate Stalin's very pancreas—but men and women who over the years and at great sacrifice fought Stalin's stooges. There is always a spirit of camaraderie among those who were unafraid when it was more popular to sign petitions and sponsor front organizations, and now when the opportunists beg to be forgotten if not forgiven, there is some pardonable elation. Among those present was Angela Calomiris.

I had never seen her before and it was hard enough now. A tiny mite, weighing somewhere near a hundred pounds, sharp-eyed, with a gay humor, she was the guest of honor. A few days earlier, her first book, "Red Masquerade," had appeared and she was now a literary personage.

Angela Calomiris had been an FBI undercover girl for seven dangerous years and it was exciting to see her in the company of other former FBI agents at this party. They were bound together by the ordeal through which they had passed.

But the next morning—it was Sunday—I looked in the book sections of the New York Herald Tribune and the New York Times, two newspapers that have practically monopolized book reviewing in the United States. Not one word appeared about this important book. They did not even say that it was bad; they ignored it. It is the more amazing that both should simultaneously reject this book. What is this, a cartel?

So, I pushed aside a day's work and read, with more excitement and fascination every moment, "Red Masquerade," by Angela Calomiris. Here is an American girl of Greek origin who is recruited by the FBI in wartime to do dangerous work for her country, with no protection, with no compensation, with only her expenses paid.

She is told at the start that should she be involved in difficulties, the FBI would not acknowledge her for obvious reasons. This work she did so well that she reached an important place in the Communist movement and thus laid the basis for the indictment and conviction of the 11 Communist leaders in New York.

It is a heroic tale not only of Angie herself but of the hard-working, painstaking FBI agents who are on the job day and night working for the American people.

"Red Masquerade" is the best-written, the most literate, and by far the most accurate description of the methods of the Communist Party and their associate organizations in the United States. It is the only book that I know that gives a closeup view of the function of cells and district organizations.

Quite apart from the absorbing story of Angela Calomiris, this is an invaluable sociological and political study which should be in every library in the country.

Yet, the two big Sunday book review magazines ignored it completely. They gave loads of space to Owen Lattimore's self-serving defense, but not one word to a carefully written, competently documented account of the methods by which the FBI actually succeeded in gaining convictions of Communists in our courts.

DIET AND HEALTH

A Lack of Calcium is Serious

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THE body needs a widely assorted variety of materials to build and maintain its diverse structures. One of the most necessary is calcium or lime, so important not only to the building of strong bones but also to the proper functioning of certain muscle tissue.

Though severe calcium deficiency or osteomalacia occurs but rarely in grown-up individuals, its symptoms are well known. Pain of a deep-seated, boring quality is always an accompaniment of this disorder, and there is also a great deal of muscular weakness. Since calcium is pulled out of the bones, they often become rubbery and soft. Fractures are common because lack of calcium weakens the bones.

Severe Form

Though the severe form of this disease is seldom seen in this country, milder cases are much more common. In these instances, however, the signs and symptoms are likely to be indefinite. Among the most reliable is aching pain in the arms and legs which tends to become more noticeable at night. Pain in the chest and tenderness of the spine are sometimes present.

In order to make a diagnosis of this condition, X-rays of the bones should be taken. These X-rays will show whether there has been a loss of lime salts. In addition, it is helpful to study the patient's diet to see if he has been getting enough calcium-rich foods, such as milk and its products. Of course, lack of exposure to sunlight, or an insufficient intake of vitamin D, which is needed so that the body may take up and use calcium, will also lead to calcium deficiency. If it is thought that the patient's symptoms are due to calcium deficiency, the giving of calcium preparations, together with vitamin D, should bring prompt relief.

Calcium in Body

During certain periods of life, there is a demand for increased amounts of calcium in the body. Unless plenty of the foods rich in calcium are eaten during pregnancy and adolescence, calcium deficiency is likely to result. The mother who breast feeds her baby also has need for ample amounts of calcium.

Such preparations as calcium lactate or calcium gluconate can be used to supply it in any of these cases. The preparations can be satisfactorily administered by mouth.

LOOK OUT for LIZA

By FAITH BALDWIN

Copyright, 1950, by Faith Baldwin Cuthrell
Distributed by King Features Syndicate

SYNOPSIS

The late wealthy George Lennox had appointed his three best friends as trustees of his estate to "look out for Liza," his attractive young widow. There is elderly Dr. Fleming, Hiram Mason, banker, and Michael Lennox, world traveler and writer—a bachelor. Putting her grief aside at last, Liza journeys from New England to New York where she discusses her future plans with old Dr. Fleming. Despite expert advice to the contrary, she invests heavily in a certain security, confident that it will go "up." She searches out a fashionable East Side apartment where she hopes to entertain friends, old and new. At last the unpredictable Michael Lennox, least important of her trustees, calls on her. Michael tries to pose as a "grouch"—but Liza knows that here is a young-man-about-town, with whom to have the gay fun which she had somehow missed.

CHAPTER TWELVE

AFTER dinner Michael followed upstairs. She seemed to take this for granted, and had ordered coffee served there. Would he like a long drink? He would.

She said, when the waiter departed, "You drink too much, I think."

"That," said Michael, "is a matter of opinion." He offered her his cigarette case and she shook her head. "You don't smoke?" he asked, astonished.

"Occasionally. I don't much care for it," said Liza. "My mother didn't permit, nor George encourage me to—"

"Mary Alice and Virginia are chain smokers, if I remember correctly."

"Well," explained Liza, "he couldn't do anything about them. They were his daughters."

"You bewilder me, Liza."

"I don't mean to. That is, I don't think I do." She looked at him unsmiling and asked, "You don't like me, do you, Michael?"

He said warily, "My dear child, I don't know you. You are, as it seems superfluous to state, extraordinarily charming. That, I do like. I like," he added baldly, "your shape and coloring, the way you dress and walk, your voice, and absurd accent, which I suspect you deliberately cultivate. I like the perfume you use . . ."

"But not me?"

"Is it important?"

"Very," she said earnestly. She leaned forward, her regard level. "You see, I must have someone to turn to, someone George trusted."

Michael laughed. "How often have you said this before?"

She thought, "Five times," she answered finally.

His heavy eyebrows, darker than his hair, shot up. "And to whom?"

"Your fellow trustees," retorted Liza, smiling, "my lawyer, and Elliot Wayne."

"Holy smoke!" said Michael helplessly. "Then, why me? Surely, that's redundant?"

"No, you would each serve a similar purpose yet—how shall I say it . . ?" she hesitated.

"Go on, this is fascinating."

"But differently. That's why George selected you. He told me why, you know. He said, 'Robert Fleming will give you sound advice, you can go to Robert with anything. He knows people, and what makes them tick. He is kind and clever. He has nobility. Hiram Mason is a stuffed shirt. But honest. He can advise you on impersonal matters and upon the purely surface status of anyone you may meet . . .'"

"Don't stop," said Michael. "This is a dilly."

"Mr. Elsmen is a lawyer," said Liza, "Mr. Wayne's a broker. That speaks for itself."

"Shouts," he agreed. "But what about me?"

"He said, 'Michael's the one with whom you can have fun,'" she quoted exactly. "'He is nearer your age. He is irresponsible and unpredictable. He will shake you up, and stimulate you. Don't ask him about legal matters, social standing, or unimportant emotional problems. He doesn't give a damn about the first two and he is far too mixed up himself to be reliable about the third. But if you're ever in a real jam, he's your man. He has integrity. And a realistic approach to living.'"

"Including furniture?"

Liza said, "You are nearer my age, you know." She looked at him thoughtfully and he said in alarm, "I begin to believe that I can read your mind."

"What does it say?"

"You are doing me over," he replied, in horror, "like a shabby house. You note that, while my tweeds are, as they say, good, they are not well pressed; you don't like my tie. Also, I need a haircut. Am I right?"

Liza nodded. She said kindly, "I expect that it's all part of being a writer. Half indifference and half pose."

"It is not a pose," he contradicted. When he saw her smile he set his teeth and groaned. "I hate a candid woman—or one who pretends to be candid," he told her.

"Why?"

"I will not be drawn," he answered, and added, somewhat abruptly, that he must go, as he did his best work during the late evening hours.

"And your research?"

Michael grinned. "Horrid invention, Mr. Bell's," he murmured. "For your information she is blonde, five foot eight, and weighs one hundred and twenty-five pounds. She lives in the same building and occasionally drops in to discuss a plot angle with me. She also writes."

Liza said, "I hope you'll introduce me to her, Michael."

"God forbid," he said piously, and rose. "This has all been too terribly unenlightening, or has it? Thanks for a delightful evening. Next time I'll sit home and do a cross-word puzzle."

He waited. Liza did not move, sitting in the corner of a couch. He stood over her, too conscious of looming.

"You don't like me," she mused aloud. "You think I am attractive but you don't like me. That is because you loved George and believe I married him for his money. I did not. It may take me some time to convince you. But even if I had, Michael, what difference would it make as long as I made him happy, as long as I preserved his illusions?"

"Why, now that you put it that way, none, I presume," he answered, startled.

She said gravely, "Then you can dismiss that as a reason for not liking me, can't you? As a matter of fact, I loved George." He saw her face alter and grow still and became conscious of a faint uncertainty. Maybe she was telling the truth. Maybe . . .

She said, "There is no reason why we can't be friends, or, at least, pleasant acquaintances. I like you, I think. There are things about you I don't, of course, understand. But George prejudiced me in your favor and whatever else you think, you must admit his judgment was good—up to his second marriage," she added, and smiled. "I'm pretty much alone—" she hesitated, trying to find the right words—"I really don't know anyone here but you, anyone as young."

"I," he said, "am older than the Pyramids."

"Your friends aren't."

"Male or female?"

"Both. But, more importantly, male."

He backed away somewhat and demanded, "Just what do you want me to do?"

"It's simple. Take me to lunch—say Thursday, and go furniture shopping with me. Look at the apartment. And provide interesting guests to fill it, one day. Until, eventually . . ."

"Eventually what?"

She said, "I'll tell you when the time comes, when we know each other better."

"Liza," he said, "I'd like to accommodate you. As it happens, I have an engagement Thursday."

"With me."

"No."

"With me," she repeated firmly.

"Oh, all right. Where do you want to eat?"

"I like Henri's."

"One o'clock then. I'll wear my Boy Scout shoes—"

She said, "Come for me at twelve here, please, Michael. You should see the apartment first."

"Why do things like this happen to me?" he demanded, retrieved a battered hat, and staggered to the door. It was very warm, he concluded, and mopped his brow.

Liza went to the door with him, and fixed him with, he feared a somewhat complacent regard. He said, "All right, but I don't like you any better, Liza . . ."

"Zut!" said Liza fondly, and closed the door.

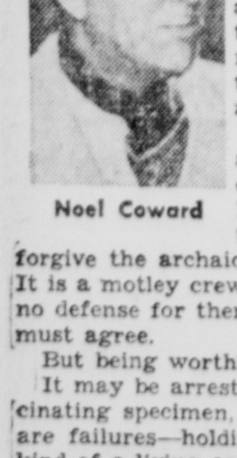
My New York

By MEL HEIMER



Noel Coward

NEW YORK—Westbrook Pegler once told me he thought I was wasting my time and dubious talent whenever I took time out to write about Broadwayites. He didn't use the term to include the more honest and hard-working of show people or the others whose professions take them in or around the big drag, but he did mean the gamblers, the hangers-on, the phonies and all the other riff-raff who go to make up nine-tenths of the population of the most famous boulevard in the world and its environs. To him, they are worthless.

It is likely he is right; they are worthless. There are onetime bartenders with shady pasts who operate cafes, there are hustlers, there are greasy little men with no talent who pry a living from those who have. There are blackmailers and, God forgive the archaic term, gigolos. There are hopheads and egotists. It is a motley crew, a rag-bag of failures and sycophants. I can find no defense for them, and when I am told they are a miserable lot, I must agree.

But being worthless and being uninteresting are not the same.

It may be arrested development, but I find the Broadwayite a fascinating specimen, on a slide and under the lens. So many of them are failures—holding on to a star's coattails, scratching out some kind of a living around Times Square each day, making no talent go far enough to fill the belly and occupy the hours. And failures are absorbing clinical specimens. As successes often are not. The success story is admirable and sometimes thrilling, but it is almost always familiar. In two words, it is: hard work. When you have interviewed movie stars, politicians, bank presidents and generals long enough, you learn that they all got there, fair means or foul, by sweating and straining.

The failure is the man who never got there, and along Broadway there are a thousand. Their stories all are different. The common denominator is this: tomorrow, they're all going to get there. Only they never do.

TELEVISION APPEARS TO HAVE BECOME a runaway horse in this city, if not in yours. The big radio stars are fleeing to video like rats from a sinking ship, and I am told by my more up-to-date fellowmen that the quality of TV entertainment has improved considerably and can be watched now by 10 and 12-year-olds without boredom. The other forms of entertainment are lying on the canvas, writhing. The Giant baseball club, for instance, played to 200,000 less fans this summer. The movie houses are empty. And when Ezzard Charles cut up Joe Louis in that Yankee Stadium farewell bout of Louis'—except he didn't say positively—the paid admission was 13,562 . . . rattling around in a ballpark meant for 80,000. The promoters were so distressed by the figure that they announced it at 22,357, a bit of whitewashing that hasn't been matched since the late Matt Winn swiftly figured out the Kentucky Derby attendance and then blandly multiplied by two.

MR. MILTON BERLE, incidentally, has run into a few thorns as he has opened his fall defense of his Mr. Television title. His variety-show format, peppered with endless interjections of Milton himself, has been copied by so many other video performers that the novelty is gone. Furthermore, they are stealing Milton's jokes, a form of second-hand larceny that has its hilarious moments. Not only do they not credit the comedian who said the jokes originally; they don't even credit Milton.

ONE SUCCESS WHOM I FOUND INTERESTING in years gone by was Noel Coward. He comes to mind now because the word is out that an enormous number of new plays and musical comedies will be offered in the New York show shops this winter—and if they follow the general pattern in recent years, they will be, most of them, terribly amateurish. Mr. Coward is, if nothing else, a professional. There is nothing of the little-theater about his work. He can write the frothiest trash in the world, and on occasion has. But he knows his trade so well that even his trash can sneak by and become successful because it is excellently-presented trash. Dear Noel with a dud is like a smart pitcher who has mislaid his fast ball. He has so much of what the ballplayers call savvy that he can have you believing he still has the fast one.

It doesn't appear that Mr. C. will be represented this season. Arthur Miller, Tennessee Williams and a number of the other earnest young men with aches in their hearts but not exactly what you might call a feel for words, will be. It begins to look like amateur night again.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

The President is considering calling Congress into session immediately after Election. This will be known as "the gallant last stand of the 81st."

It will cut down on the usual after?the-poll - was - over recuperation period, but will permit lame duck members an extra flutter of their damaged wings.

And some of those fellows really can fly. Since Senator Pepper was winged in the Florida primaries he has flown almost around the world.

Some people may wonder if this special session can really accomplish anything, but you will recall that a special session was called from the platform at the 1948 Democratic convention and non one thought it could accomplish anything. It didn't either.

Parliament is already in session and working on the nationalization of beets. Rutabaga may be next, then yellow turnips.

As we understand it, in the future each beet will be licensed and given a number and a health certificate good for one annual medical checkup.

Good advice is a fine thing to have, of course, but sometimes it doesn't work out just right. Herb Stein, for instance, writes of a beautiful young hopeful in Hollywood, who was assured by her agent, "The only thing you need to land a fat contract at Paramount is better posture. Learn to walk correctly and you're in." So the girl went to an expensive school and spent her days walking up and down with a book balanced on her head. And the day after she graduated, Paramount bought the book.

MORE SAVINGS NEEDED

IT IS encouraging to note that President Truman—following the directive of Congress—has whacked $580,000,000 of nondefense spending from the budget. Included are such items as government hospitals, rural electrification and telephone loans, farm housing loans, civil functions on military reservations and reclamation.

So far, so good. Anything that can be reduced outside the preparedness field—with due attention to economy there—is of paramount importance. But expert economists estimate that much more could be done. Economic loans to Europe could be greatly reduced, as most of the nations there are now recovered. Public housing could be eliminated. Private industry is taking care of that.

We could cut considerably off the crop loan program because there is very little need of price propping. Most of all we need elimination of some bureaus and merger of others not only to rid ourselves of excess government workers but the money the bureaus spend. It is still true that we could cut off $3,000,000,000 of government spending by efficient organization, as the Hoover Commission showed.

America is going to need these savings desperately in the coming years. As our budgets soar upward and upward, far beyond any possible tax revenue, they will be a menace to the foundations of America itself. Only a policy of strict economy that keeps the budget balanced, or very nearly balanced, will avert the threat.

BINS ARE FULL

THE nation's farm crops, as now estimated at the close of the growing season, will be slightly better than the eight-year average, a remarkable fact when it is remembered those years showed exceptionally high production figures.

Only corn fell below previous estimates, being off 45,000,000 bushels from forecasts, but still yielding a thumping 3,117,937,000 total. Other but less important crops also were subject to discount. Another promising Winter wheat crop has gone into the ground under most favorable circumstances.

Food continues to be the most important factor in world affairs. There are still millions of hungry people in the world, and the possibility of war will increase the number. With few exceptions, these unfortunates will look to the United States for food. It is fortuitous that this country's bins are full to overflowing, making it possible to share this abundance with those who will be in need.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

So I went to a party of Red-baiters—not the Johnny-come-latelies who swear that they were never Pinkoes and hate Stalin's very pancreas—but men and women who over the years and at great sacrifice fought Stalin's stooges. There is always a spirit of camaraderie among those who were unafraid when it was more popular to sign petitions and sponsor front organizations, and now when the opportunists beg to be forgotten if not forgiven, there is some pardonable elation. Among those present was Angela Calomiris.

I had never seen her before and it was hard enough now. A tiny mite, weighing somewhere near a hundred pounds, sharp-eyed, with a gay humor, she was the guest of honor. A few days earlier, her first book, "Red Masquerade," had appeared and she was now a literary personage.

Angela Calomiris had been an FBI undercover girl for seven dangerous years and it was exciting to see her in the company of other former FBI agents at this party. They were bound together by the ordeal through which they had passed.

But the next morning—it was Sunday—I looked in the book sections of the New York Herald Tribune and the New York Times, two newspapers that have practically monopolized book reviewing in the United States. Not one word appeared about this important book. They did not even say that it was bad; they ignored it. It is the more amazing that both should simultaneously reject this book. What is this, a cartel?

So, I pushed aside a day's work and read, with more excitement and fascination every moment, "Red Masquerade," by Angela Calomiris. Here is an American girl of Greek origin who is recruited by the FBI in wartime to do dangerous work for her country, with no protection, with no compensation, with only her expenses paid.

She is told at the start that should she be involved in difficulties, the FBI would not acknowledge her for obvious reasons. This work she did so well that she reached an important place in the Communist movement and thus laid the basis for the indictment and conviction of the 11 Communist leaders in New York.

It is a heroic tale not only of Angie herself but of the hard-working, painstaking FBI agents who are on the job day and night working for the American people.

"Red Masquerade" is the best-written, the most literate, and by far the most accurate description of the methods of the Communist Party and their associate organizations in the United States. It is the only book that I know that gives a closeup view of the function of cells and district organizations.

Quite apart from the absorbing story of Angela Calomiris, this is an invaluable sociological and political study which should be in every library in the country.

Yet, the two big Sunday book review magazines ignored it completely. They gave loads of space to Owen Lattimore's self-serving defense, but not one word to a carefully written, competently documented account of the methods by which the FBI actually succeeded in gaining convictions of Communists in our courts.

DIET AND HEALTH

A Lack of Calcium is Serious

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THE body needs a widely assorted variety of materials to build and maintain its diverse structures. One of the most necessary is calcium or lime, so important not only to the building of strong bones but also to the proper functioning of certain muscle tissue.

Though severe calcium deficiency or osteomalacia occurs but rarely in grown-up individuals, its symptoms are well known. Pain of a deep-seated, boring quality is always an accompaniment of this disorder, and there is also a great deal of muscular weakness. Since calcium is pulled out of the bones, they often become rubbery and soft. Fractures are common because lack of calcium weakens the bones.

Severe Form

Though the severe form of this disease is seldom seen in this country, milder cases are much more common. In these instances, however, the signs and symptoms are likely to be indefinite. Among the most reliable is aching pain in the arms and legs which tends to become more noticeable at night. Pain in the chest and tenderness of the spine are sometimes present.

In order to make a diagnosis of this condition, X-rays of the bones should be taken. These X-rays will show whether there has been a loss of lime salts. In addition, it is helpful to study the patient's diet to see if he has been getting enough calcium-rich foods, such as milk and its products. Of course, lack of exposure to sunlight, or an insufficient intake of vitamin D, which is needed so that the body may take up and use calcium, will also lead to calcium deficiency. If it is thought that the patient's symptoms are due to calcium deficiency, the giving of calcium preparations, together with vitamin D, should bring prompt relief.

Calcium in Body

During certain periods of life, there is a demand for increased amounts of calcium in the body. Unless plenty of the foods rich in calcium are eaten during pregnancy and adolescence, calcium deficiency is likely to result. The mother who breast feeds her baby also has need for ample amounts of calcium.

Such preparations as calcium lactate or calcium gluconate can be used to supply it in any of these cases. The preparations can be satisfactorily administered by mouth.

LOOK OUT for LIZA

By FAITH BALDWIN

Copyright, 1950, by Faith Baldwin Cuthrell

SYNOPSIS

The late wealthy George Lennox had appointed his three best friends as trustees of his estate to "look out for Liza," his attractive young widow. There is elderly Dr. Fleming, Hiram Mason, banker, and Michael Lennox, world traveler and writer—a bachelor. Putting her grief aside at last, Liza journeys from New England to New York where she discusses her future plans with old Dr. Fleming. Despite expert advice to the contrary, she invests heavily in a certain security, confident that it will go "up." She searches out a fashionable East Side apartment where she hopes to entertain friends, old and new. At last the unpredictable Michael Lennox, least important of her trustees, calls on her. Michael tries to pose as a "grouch"—but Liza knows that here is a young-man-about-town, with whom to have the gay fun which she had somehow missed.

CHAPTER TWELVE

AFTER dinner Michael followed upstairs. She seemed to take this for granted, and had ordered coffee served there. Would he like a long drink? He would.

She said, when the waiter departed, "You drink too much, I think."

"That," said Michael, "is a matter of opinion." He offered her his cigarette case and she shook her head. "You don't smoke?" he asked, astonished.

"Occasionally. I don't much care for it," said Liza. "My mother didn't permit, nor George encourage me to—"

"Mary Alice and Virginia are chain smokers, if I remember correctly."

"Well," explained Liza, "he couldn't do anything about them. They were his daughters."

"You bewilder me, Liza."

"I don't mean to. That is, I don't think I do." She looked at him unsmiling and asked, "You don't like me, do you, Michael?"

He said warily, "My dear child, I don't know you. You are, as it seems superfluous to state, extraordinarily charming. That, I do like. I like," he added baldly, "your shape and coloring, the way you dress and walk, your voice, and absurd accent, which I suspect you deliberately cultivate. I like the perfume you use . . ."

"But not me?"

"Is it important?"

"Very," she said earnestly. She leaned forward, her regard level. "You see, I must have someone to turn to, someone George trusted."

Michael laughed. "How often have you said this before?"

She thought, "Five times," she answered finally.

His heavy eyebrows, darker than his hair, shot up. "And to whom?"

"Your fellow trustees," retorted Liza, smiling, "my lawyer, and Elliot Wayne."

"Holy smoke!" said Michael helplessly. "Then, why me? Surely, that's redundant?"

"No, you would each serve a similar purpose yet—how shall I say it . . .?" she hesitated.

"Go on, this is fascinating."

"But differently. That's why George selected you. He told me why, you know. He said, 'Robert Fleming will give you sound advice, you can go to Robert with anything. He knows people, and what makes them tick. He is kind and clever. He has nobility. Hiram Mason is a stuffed shirt. But honest. He can advise you on impersonal matters and upon the purely surface status of anyone you may meet . . .'"

"Don't stop," said Michael. "This is a dilly."

"Mr. Elsmen is a lawyer," said Liza, "Mr. Wayne's a broker. That speaks for itself."

"Shouts," he agreed. "But what about me?"

"He said, 'Michael's the one with whom you can have fun,'" she quoted exactly. "'He is nearer your age. He is irresponsible and unpredictable. He will shake you up, and stimulate you. Don't ask him about legal matters, social standing, or unimportant emotional problems. He doesn't give a damn about the first two and he is far too mixed up himself to be reliable about the third. But if you're ever in a real jam, he's your man. He has integrity. And a realistic approach to living.'"

"Including furniture?"

Liza said, "You are nearer my age, you know." She looked at him thoughtfully and he said in alarm, "I begin to believe that I can read your mind."

"What does it say?"

"You are doing me over," he replied, in horror, "like a shabby house. You note that, while my tweeds are, as they say, good, they are not well pressed; you don't like my tie. Also, I need a haircut. Am I right?"

Liza nodded. She said kindly, "I expect that it's all part of being a writer. Half indifference and half pose."

"It is not a pose," he contradicted. When he saw her smile he set his teeth and groaned. "I hate a candid woman—or one who pretends to be candid," he told her.

"Why?"

"I will not be drawn," he answered, and added, somewhat abruptly, that he must go, as he did his best work during the late evening hours.

"And your research?"

Michael grinned. "Horrid invention, Mr. Bell's," he murmured. "For your information she is blonde, five foot eight, and weighs one hundred and twenty-five pounds. She lives in the same building and occasionally drops in to discuss a plot angle with me. She also writes."

Liza said, "I hope you'll introduce me to her, Michael."

"God forbid," he said piously, and rose. "This has all been too terribly unenlightening, or has it? Thanks for a delightful evening. Next time I'll sit home and do a cross-word puzzle."

He waited. Liza did not move, sitting in the corner of a couch. He stood over her, too conscious of looming.

"You don't like me," she mused aloud. "You think I am attractive but you don't like me. That is because you loved George and believe I married him for his money. I did not. It may take me some time to convince you. But even if I had, Michael, what difference would it make as long as I made him happy, as long as I preserved his illusions?"

"Why, now that you put it that way, none, I presume," he answered, startled.

She said gravely, "Then you can dismiss that as a reason for not liking me, can't you? As a matter of fact, I loved George." He saw her face alter and grow still and became conscious of a faint uncertainty. Maybe she was telling the truth. Maybe . . .

She said, "There is no reason why we can't be friends, or, at least, pleasant acquaintances. I like you, I think. There are things about you I don't, of course, understand. But George prejudiced me in your favor and whatever else you think, you must admit his judgment was good—up to his second marriage," she added, and smiled. "I'm pretty much alone—" she hesitated, trying to find the right words—"I really don't know anyone here but you, anyone as young."

"I," he said, "am older than the Pyramids."

"Your friends aren't."

"Male or female?"

"Both. But, more importantly, male."

He backed away somewhat and demanded, "Just what do you want me to do?"

"It's simple. Take me to lunch—say Thursday, and go furniture shopping with me. Look at the apartment. And provide interesting guests to fill it, one day. Until, eventually . . ."

"Eventually what?"

She said, "I'll tell you when the time comes, when we know each other better."

"Liza," he said, "I'd like to accommodate you. As it happens, I have an engagement Thursday."

"With me."

"No."

"With me," she repeated firmly.

"Oh, all right. Where do you want to eat?"

"I like Henri's."

"One o'clock then. I'll wear my Boy Scout shoes—"

She said, "Come for me at twelve here, please, Michael. You should see the apartment first."

"Why do things like this happen to me?" he demanded, retrieved a battered hat, and staggered to the door. It was very warm, he concluded, and mopped his brow.

Liza went to the door with him, and fixed him with, he feared a somewhat complacent regard. He said, "All right, but I don't like you any better, Liza . . ."

"Zut!" said Liza fondly, and closed the door.

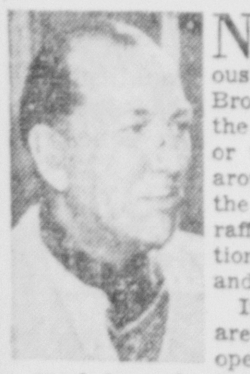
My New York

By MEL HEIMER



Noel Coward

NEW YORK—Westbrook Pegler once told me he thought I was wasting my time and dubious talent whenever I took time out to write about Broadwayites. He didn't use the term to include the more honest and hard-working of show people or the others whose professions take them in or around the big drag, but he did mean the gamblers, the hangers-on, the phonies and all the other riff-raff who go to make up nine-tenths of the population of the most famous boulevard in the world and its environs. To him, they are worthless.

It is likely he is right; they are worthless. There are onetime bartenders with shady pasts who operate cafes, there are hustlers, there are greasy little men with no talent who pry a living from those who have. There are blackmailers and, God forgive the archaic term, gigolos. There are hopheads and egotists. It is a motley crew, a rag-bag of failures and sycophants. I can find no defense for them, and when I am told they are a miserable lot, I must agree.

But being worthless and being uninteresting are not the same.

It may be arrested development, but I find the Broadwayite a fascinating specimen, on a slide and under the lens. So many of them are failures—holding on to a star's coattails, scratching out some kind of a living around Times Square each day, making no talent go far enough to fill the belly and occupy the hours. And failures are absorbing clinical specimens. As successes often are not. The success story is admirable and sometimes thrilling, but it is almost always familiar. In two words, it is: hard work. When you have interviewed movie stars, politicians, bank presidents and generals long enough, you learn that they all got there, fair means or foul, by sweating and straining.

The failure is the man who never got there, and along Broadway there are a thousand. Their stories all are different. The common denominator is this: tomorrow, they're all going to get there. Only they never do.

TELEVISION APPEARS TO HAVE BECOME a runaway horse in this city, if not in yours. The big radio stars are fleeing to video like rats from a sinking ship, and I am told by my more up-to-date fellowmen that the quality of TV entertainment has improved considerably and can be watched now by 10 and 12-year-olds without boredom. The other forms of entertainment are lying on the canvas, writhing. The Giant baseball club, for instance, played to 200,000 less fans this summer. The movie houses are empty. And when Ezzard Charles cut up Joe Louis in that Yankee Stadium farewell bout of Louis'—except he didn't say positively—the paid admission was 13,562 . . . rattling around in a ballpark meant for 80,000. The promoters were so distressed by the figure that they announced it at 22,357, a bit of whitewashing that hasn't been matched since the late Matt Winn swiftly figured out the Kentucky Derby attendance and then blandly multiplied by two.

MR. MILTON BERLE, incidentally, has run into a few thorns as he has opened his fall defense of his Mr. Television title. His variety-show format, peppered with endless interjections of Milton himself, has been copied by so many other video performers that the novelty is gone. Furthermore, they are stealing Milton's jokes, a form of second-hand larceny that has its hilarious moments. Not only do they not credit the comedian who said the jokes originally; they don't even credit Milton.

ANNE MURPHY is the wife of our new police commissioner, a broth of a man whose brother once pitched for the Yankees. Murphy, first name Tom, has the most magnificent mustache since Taft's. How do women feel about kissing men with mustaches? "Sometimes," Anne said recently, "he threatens to shave off his mustache. I tell him when he does that, that is when I check out."

ONE SUCCESS WHOM I FOUND INTERESTING in years gone by was Noel Coward. He comes to mind now because the word is out that an enormous number of new plays and musical comedies will be offered in the New York show shops this winter—and if they follow the general pattern in recent years, they will be, most of them, terribly amateurish. Mr. Coward is, if nothing else, a professional. There is nothing of the little-theater about his work. He can write the frothiest trash in the world, and on occasion has. But he knows his trade so well that even his trash can sneak by and become successful because it is excellently-presented trash. Dear Noel with a dud is like a smart pitcher who has mislaid his fast ball. He has so much of what the ballplayers call savvy that he can have you believing he still has the fast one.

It doesn't appear that Mr. C. will be represented this season. Arthur Miller, Tennessee Williams and a number of the other earnest young men with aches in their hearts but not exactly what you might call a feel for words, will be. It begins to look like amateur night again.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

The President is considering calling Congress into session immediately after Election. This will be known as "the gallant last stand of the 81st."

It will cut down on the usual after?the-poll - was - over recuperation period, but will permit lame duck members an extra flutter of their damaged wings.

And some of those fellows really can fly. Since Senator Pepper was winged in the Florida primaries he has flown almost around the world.

Some people may wonder if this special session can really accomplish anything, but you will recall that a special session was called from the platform at the 1948 Democratic convention and non one thought it could accomplish anything. It didn't either.

Parliament is already in session and working on the nationalization of beets. Rutabaga may be next, then yellow turnips.

As we understand it, in the future each beet will be licensed and given a number and a health certificate good for one annual medical checkup.

Try, Stop Me

Good advice is a fine thing to have, of course, but sometimes it doesn't work out just right. Herb Stein, for instance, writes of a beautiful young hopeful in Hollywood, who was assured by her agent, "The only thing you need to land a fat contract at Paramount is better posture. Learn to walk correctly and you're in." So the girl went to an expensive school and spent her days walking up and down with a book balanced on her head. And the day after she graduated, Paramount bought the book.

In one of his classic stories, George Ade told of a thug who murdered his wife and then was put through five hours of grilling at the local police station. He finally exploded, "Gee whiz, Lieutenant, I'd never have killed her if I'd known there was gonna be all this red tape."

A hospital patient gazed fondly at his winsome, red-haired nurse and told the doctor, "Wonderful nurse you've got here. One touch of her hands cooled my fever miraculously." "We know," the doctor answered him. "We could hear her slap clear to the end of the corridor."

WRITE-IN VOTE EXPLAINED

About Anyone May Run For High Court Position

COLUMBUS, Nov. 2 — Despite expectations of a record or near-record turn-out at next Tuesday's election, a few thousand write-in votes may elect a candidate to one of the highest offices in the state—that of judge of the Ohio supreme court.

The winning candidates for governor and U. S. senator undoubtedly will receive in excess of a million and a quarter and possibly a million and a half votes.

But, for the remaining four years of the term of the late Judge Edward C. Turner, there will be no name printed on the ballot. The lawyer with the most friends, who know how to spell his name and mark correctly the "X" in front of the written-in name, will win.

Judge Turner died after the deadline for printing names on the state judicial ballot. It's a wide-open race, with every lawyer with six years or more of legal experience eligible. Even party affiliation isn't important, since the non-judicial ballot by which judges are elected does not identify candidates as Republican, Democrat or Independent.

* * *

A DOZEN OR more names are being bandied about for the $12,000-a-year job, with the result that no clear-cut majority of votes cast will go to any one candidate. Fifty or sixty thousand ballots probably will determine the winner.

The race seems to boil down to a half-dozen leading contenders—Henry W. Middleton of Toledo, the choice of the Republican Party; Judge Howard E. Faught of Cambridge, appointed by Governor Lausche to the post until Turner's successor is elected; Appellate Court Judge Arthur W. Doyle of Akron, being backed by the jurists of the state's intermediate courts; W. Harper Annat of Wooster, now an assistant attorney general; Fred Dewey, former Cleveland barrister currently a law professor at the University of Cincinnati, and Former Congressman Martin L. Sweeney of Cleveland.

Others prominently mentioned include Franklin County Prosecutor Ralph J. Bartlett of Columbus, Former PUCO Commissioner Dennis Dunlavy of Ashtabula, J. Ewing Smith of Logan County and Former Industrial Commission Secretary Paul Ward of Columbus.

The Democrats have no agreed candidate, since the party "endorsed" or recommended no less than 14 possibilities to Governor Laushce for the temporary appointment which went to Judge Faught.

For this reason, the role of favorite probably goes to Middleton, who, by virtue of his statewide GOP endorsement, is having his name "Xed" on all Republican sample ballots distributed in the 88 counties.

The Democrats, of course, are somewhat committed to Faught, but there is no concerted effort to win the judicial seat for him. In fact, Democratic literature being circulated in Franklin County states that the voter "may" write in Faught's name or the name of "any other qualified Democrat."

Truman Is 6th President To Be A Target

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—President Truman was the sixth President to become the target for assassins' bullets which felled three of his predecessors.

Franklin D. Roosevelt was fired at by Anarchist Guiseppe Zangara in Miami, Fla., Feb. 15, 1933.

The shot went wild when a woman grabbed the would-be assassin's arm and the bullet struck Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago. Cermak died on March 6 and Zangara later was electrocuted.

And still another Roosevelt was shot at by a maniac. Theodore Roosevelt received a slight wound from a bullet fired at him in Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 14, 1912, while campaigning to return to the presidency on the Bull Moose ticket.

President William McKinley was shot by Leon Czolgosz in Buffalo Sept. 6, 1901, and died eight days later. Czolgosz was executed.

* * *

JAMES A. GARFIELD was struck down by a disgruntled office-seeker in Washington July 2, 1881. He lived more than two months despite his wound and died on Sept. 19. His killer, Charles J. Guiteau, was hanged.

The most famous assassination was the fatal wounding of Abraham Lincoln April 14, 1865, as he attended a performance in Washington's Fords' theater.

His slayer—Actor John Wilkes Booth—was tracked down and killed by soldiers. There are some, however, who claim that Booth was not killed, but that another man was shot in a case of mistaken identity.

Black, Red Ink Slated In Sales

Junior Marketing Plan Outlined

COLUMBUS, Nov. 2 — Black ink instead of blue ribbons will designate winners at Ohio's first Junior Livestock Market Day here Monday.

Boys and girls selling cattle at Producers Livestock Cooperative Association's stockyards will be striving for black ink in the credit columns of their record books, John Mount, assistant state 4-H Club leader said today.

And red—the color of second place ribbons in shows—will only mean a junior stockman has lost money and has ink in the wrong column after Market Day.

Profit or loss, shown by summary and analysis of record books after Market Day, is going to take the place of prizes. Purpose of Junior Market Day is "to give older boys and girls practical experience in marketing beef cattle," explained James Warner, extension beef cattle specialist at Ohio State University.

* * *

CATTLE WILL BE brought into the stockyards at 9:30 a.m., graded immediately and sold by consignment.

Mount pointed out that boys and girls have entered this project "to learn how to become successful cattle feeders. They have had advice of their folks, market representatives, county agents and agriculture teachers and are expected to have kept records of dates, prices, amounts of feed and feed-mixture proportions."

These records will be discussed in Plumb Hall on the Ohio State university campus at 8 p. m. Friday, Nov. 10. Lyle Barnes, farm management extension specialist, will go over the records with boys and girls.

"They should be able to account for profit or loss—and to a pretty close penny," Mount said.

In addition to Warner, Mount and Barnes, guests at the Nov. 10 meeting will include Roy Pavey and C. F. Flickinger, both of Producers.

Ohio Retail Sales Buck Fall Trend

2 Pct. September Decline Noted

COLUMBUS, Nov. 2 — Ohio retail sales dropped two percent in September, a month when a seasonal gain usually occurs, according to the October issue of the Ohio Retail Annalist, published by the Bureau of Business Research at Ohio State university.

Sales remained ahead of last year, however, at a level 10 percent above the first nine months and 14 percent higher than September, 1949.

All lines reported gains from last year, the Annalist said, but appliance, furniture, shoe, motor vehicles, jewelry and men's clothing stores, in that order, led with increases ranging from 48 to 21 percent.

The bureau's seasonally adjusted index of Ohio retail trade stood at 280 percent of the 1935-1939 average in September.

Retail sales for 1950 to date in all the larger Ohio cities showed a substantial increase over 1949, ranging from a 12 percent gain in Cleveland and Youngstown to a five percent increase in Toledo.

* * *

CITY BY CITY, the percentage comparisons for September, 1950, against September, 1949, and for the first nine months of this year as compared with the same months of 1949 were:

Akron, up 26 percent and up 11 percent; Canton, up 26 percent and up 11 percent; Cincinnati, up 18 percent and up 11 percet; Cleveland, up 23 percent and up 12 percent; Columbus, up 17 percent and up 10 percent; Dayton, up 16 percent and up 12 percent; Toledo, up 11 percent and up five percent; and Youngstown, up 22 percent and up 12 percent.

The Annalist, a monthly publication, is prepared for Ohio retailers and others interested in trends of the state's retail trade.

Record Federal Budget Expected For Next Year

COLUMBUS, Nov. 2—A high federal official told the 57th annual meeting of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce today that our federal budget next year will be higher than ever before.

Elmer B. Staats, assistant director of the budget, said that defense spending will pile on new burdens which cannot be compensated for by cuts elsewhere in the budget.

Addressing the forum on federal taxation, Staats said that the greatest part of the budget, excepting defense items, is made up of fixed charges such as interest on the government debt and veterans payment programs. He explained that these things cannot be controlled by any one.

Furthermore, Statts said there can be no drastic cuts in government personnel without correspondingly great reductions in the quality and type of services supplied by the government.

He pointed out that if half of all the government workers outside the Postoffice and Defense programs were fired, there still would be only about $1 billion saved out of a budget expected to surpass last year's figure of $42.4 billion.

Reckless Driver Fined $50 Here

Ernest Stacy, 26, of Detroit was fined $50 and costs Wednesday in the court of Magistrate Oscar Root for reckless operation.

Stacy was arrested on Route 23 north of Circleville late Wednesday by Deputy Mack Wise following an accident.

Wise said Stacy had been driving north on Route 23 when he lost control of his auto. The car plunged 85 feet along the highway before overturning in a ditch, the deputy said.

Stacy suffered only minor back injuries in the crash.

Ohio produces 17,000,000 tons of limestone annually.

BETTER THAN FLUORIDE

Tin Byproduct Cited As Tooth Decay Curb

CHICAGO, Nov. 2—A chemical derivative of tin has been described by two Indiana university scientists as the most effective agent yet found for preventing tooth today.

The chemical is stannous fluoride, made from tin and fluorine.

Although it has not yet been used on humans, in experiments with rats it was found to be at least 25 percent more effective than sodium fluoride.

Sodium fluoride has been widely used—either applied by dentists or added to drinking water in many cities—to prevent tooth decay in children.

Most dental authorities are agreed that sodium fluoride, properly applied, slashed tooth decay in youngsters by as much as 40 percent.

Thus, presumably, use of stannous fluoride would cut this still further to approximately 65 percent and give promise of making the dreaded dental drill only a museum piece for the youngsters.

The Indiana scientists, Joseph C. Muhler, a dentist, and Harry G. Day, a chemist, report their findings in the current issue of the Journal of the American Dental Association.

* * *

SECRET OF THE effectiveness of stannous fluoride, they report, is that it goes sodium fluoride one better in armor-plating the protective tooth enamel.

It does this by decreasing the solubility of the enamel and thus closing potential avenues into the tooth to cavity-forming bacteria.

Experiments conducted by Muhler and Day lasted over a year. During that period they fed 448 weanling rats a diet especially designed to produce tooth decay.

To the drinking water of one portion of this group was added stannous fluoride, another portion got sodium fluoride and a third, or control group, got no tooth protecting chemical.

Muhler and Day wrote:

"The results show unmistakably that stannous fluoride in the drinking water decreased the number of carious lesions (decay). . .the effect was decidedly superior to that of sodium fluoride administered at comparable concentrations.

Despite the cavity-producing diet they found that rats which had received the tin derivative in their drinking water showed an average of three cavities each; those which got sodium fluoride had 5.1 cavities each and the controls had six cavities apiece.

BETTER THAN FLUORIDE

Tin Byproduct Cited As Tooth Decay Curb

CHICAGO, Nov. 2—A chemical derivative of tin has been described by two Indiana university scientists as the most effective agent yet found for preventing tooth today.

Idle Pay Claim List Increasing

Continued Cases Said On Decline

New claims for unemployment compensation in Pickaway County continued to climb last week.

According to a statistical report prepared by the State Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, new claims last week rose to 19 from 12 for the previous week. Three weeks ago the number was nine.

Continued claims, those filed by claimants unemployed one week or more, showed a drop last week to 41 from 45 for the week before last. The October, 1949, average of continued claims filed in Pickaway County was 122.

Throughout the state new claims were on the increase. The BUC report listed a total of 4,857 new claims filed last week, compared to 4,779 for the previous week.

* * *

CONTINUED claims on the statewide scale also were up, from 28,762 for the week before last to 28,864 for last week. The October, 1949, average was 128,748.

According to C. C. Thomas, local BUC manager, a jobless worker may not be disqualified from receiving unemployment benefits if he refuses to accept a job offered by a former employer as a means of stopping the claim.

The BUC Board of Review made the unanimous decision in the hearing of an appeal brought by a Kent market operator who, according to the evidence, first asked his $75-a-week store manager for his keys, declaring that he "hoped he never saw him again," and then later offered him a parttime job at $30 a week, avowedly as a means of stopping his claim.

Evidence presented at the hearing indicated that the applicant and the employer had previously entered into a profit-sharing agreement, and it was the insistence of the applicant that he be given his share of the profits that had caused the employer to ask the manager for his keys.

It was the opinion of the board that while the parttime job offered by the former employer was suitable, and the attached pay was fair remuneration, the conditions under which it was offered justified the applicant in refusing to take it.

The board, in denying the appeal of the employer, held that the claimant had been discharged from his last employment without just cause, and approved his benefit rights without imposition of penalty.

Hog-Feed Output Balance Sought By Economists

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—Farm economists are struggling to strike "a good balance" between hog production and feed output for the year ahead.

The Agriculture Department forecasts a five percent increase next Spring in the production of hogs. Some experts say the government should try to encourage farmers to produce more than that.

But other officials point to farmers experience in 1943 when a record production of 122 million hogs was produced. Farmers ran out of feed. It had to be imported from Canada.

They say that the same situation may arise if farmers are encouraged to produce that much again next year.

And besides, it was pointed out at the agricultural outlook conference, if more feed, such as corn, is to be raised, where will it be grown?

Those who say that more pigs cannot be raised point out that in the corn belt, where 70 percent of the nation's hogs are produced, it is profitable to raise soybeans too. They say it will be difficult to persunade farmers to switch from soybean acreage to corn there.

Walnut School Youngsters Busy At Halloween

Walnut Township school was bustling with activity at about Halloween time.

First six grades of the elementary school had a Halloween party last week with prizes for the costumed winners and refreshments for all of the youngsters.

Winning prizes during the party were Carolyn Dill and Mickey Six as the prettiest; Bob Wiley and John Noecker, the funniest; Sandy McCane and Marlene Crumley, the ugliest; and Charlene Thomas and Norma Noecker, the most unusual.

Eighth graders had their Halloween fun Tuesday with a hayride into Ashville for the parade. The group later went to the home of Donald Quillen for a fireside picnic.

Eighth graders also are making history an interesting part of their studies.

The class has been divided into six groups. Each group is to write, direct and act out some phase of history between Nov. 13 and 20.

Idle Pay Claim List Increasing

Continued Cases Said On Decline

New claims for unemployment compensation in Pickaway County continued to climb last week.

According to a statistical report prepared by the State Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, new claims last week rose to 19 from 12 for the previous week. Three weeks ago the number was nine.

Continued claims, those filed by claimants unemployed one week or more, showed a drop last week to 41 from 45 for the week before last. The October, 1949, average of continued claims filed in Pickaway County was 122.

Throughout the state new claims were on the increase. The BUC report listed a total of 4,857 new claims filed last week, compared to 4,779 for the previous week.

* * *

CONTINUED claims on the statewide scale also were up, from 28,762 for the week before last to 28,864 for last week. The October, 1949, average was 128,748.

According to C. C. Thomas, local BUC manager, a jobless worker may not be disqualified from receiving unemployment benefits if he refuses to accept a job offered by a former employer as a means of stopping the claim.

The BUC Board of Review made the unanimous decision in the hearing of an appeal brought by a Kent market operator who, according to the evidence, first asked his $75-a-week store manager for his keys, declaring that he "hoped he never saw him again," and then later offered him a parttime job at $30 a week, avowedly as a means of stopping his claim.

Evidence presented at the hearing indicated that the applicant and the employer had previously entered into a profit-sharing agreement, and it was the insistence of the applicant that he be given his share of the profits that had caused the employer to ask the manager for his keys.

It was the opinion of the board that while the parttime job offered by the former employer was suitable, and the attached pay was fair remuneration, the conditions under which it was offered justified the applicant in refusing to take it.

The board, in denying the appeal of the employer, held that the claimant had been discharged from his last employment without just cause, and approved his benefit rights without imposition of penalty.

Hog-Feed Output Balance Sought By Economists

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—Farm economists are struggling to strike "a good balance" between hog production and feed output for the year ahead.

The Agriculture Department forecasts a five percent increase next Spring in the production of hogs. Some experts say the government should try to encourage farmers to produce more than that.

But other officials point to farmers experience in 1943 when a record production of 122 million hogs was produced. Farmers ran out of feed. It had to be imported from Canada.

They say that the same situation may arise if farmers are encouraged to produce that much again next year.

And besides, it was pointed out at the agricultural outlook conference, if more feed, such as corn, is to be raised, where will it be grown?

Those who say that more pigs cannot be raised point out that in the corn belt, where 70 percent of the nation's hogs are produced, it is profitable to raise soybeans too. They say it will be difficult to persunade farmers to switch from soybean acreage to corn there.

TV-Radio Programs

Programs listed in the following television log contain errors daily, the fault resting entirely with broadcasters and not with The Herald. Intent of this newspaper is to provide accurate information for subscribers, but finds this impossible so far as the three Columbus television stations are concerned. The programs printed are assembled from information sent out by the Columbus stations and are not to be regarded seriously. Complaints about inaccuracies in program listings should be made to the broadcasting stations and not to The Herald. Because of continuing inaccuracies, The Herald has been forced to delete all TV programs prior to 6 p. m. Radio programs are evening network listings.

6 LEVIES, 5 ISSUES FILED

11 Money Matters Face Voters In Tuesday Poll

Next Tuesday—Election day—Pickaway County voters will also have five bond issues to consider along with six tax levies. The bond issues are:

1. Wayne Township board of education bond issue for $10,000 to pay for school buses and improve, decorate and repair school buildings. The issue would run 10 years, would be paid off by a one mill tax on each $1 of property valuation, amounting to 10 cents on each $100.

2. Deercreek Township board of education bond issue for $25,000 to construct, improve and complete a school building and gymnasium. Issue would run 13 years, would be paid off by 1.15 mills tax.

3. Walnut Township board of education bond issue for $20,000 to construct and improve school buildings. It would run 20 years, would require a levy of three mills.

4. Darby Township board of education bond issue for $16,000 to construct and improve school buildings and to build a school bus garage and shop. It would run 10 years, would require a levy of 1.1 mills.

5. Circleville school district bond issue for $475,000 to acquire lands and construct and equip a fireproof school building. It would run 20 years, would require a levy of 2.3 mills.

* * *

TAX LEVIES, all to provide additional funds for current operating expenses, are as follows:

1. Circleville tax levy, one mill for to years, amounting to 10-cents for each $100 property valuation.

2. Scioto Township rural school district, renewal of six mills for three years, amounting to 60-cents for each $100.

WASHINGTON REPORT

By SENATOR ROBERT A. TAFT

In spite of the successful conclusion of the Korean War, American foreign policy remains the matter of greatest interest to the people in this congressional election. The Administration is tring to avoid any emphasis, before the election, on the sacrifices which the American people will be called upon to make because of the tremendous power of Soviet Russia—a power built up by the Administration's own mistakes at Potsdam and Yalta, and its strange sympathy for Communism in the Far East.

President Truman flies to Wake Island to shake hands with General MacArthur in order to associate himself with a victory produced by MacArthur's genius, and says nothing about the program which he will find necessary to proclaim after the November election.

But in the minds of the people everywhere is the thought that all of their young men are going to be drafted into the Army, upsetting their education and their program for life. There is the thought that these young men perhaps may face the tragedy of a Third World War.

In the background looms a tax burden even greater than we have ever faced before. In the domestic field the program of the Truman Administration has been blocked, and its dangerous effect in creating socialism can only be a warning, but the disastrous results of its foreign policy are with us and nothing has so much shaken the confidence of the people in President Truman and his advisers.

Whether they acquired a sympathy for Communism from Communists in high places in the government, or whether they were too dumb to see the results of their policy, Hopkins and Harriman at Yalta acted on the theory that Russia was a "peace-loving democracy." They let Stalin write the ticket. They established Russia in a position of power in Central Europe, in Berlin, Prague and Vienna.

* * *

THEY ACCEPTED promises to free Poland and the Baltic States when a child could have seen the falsity of those promises. They set Russia up in Manchuria, contrary to all American foreign policy which had been based, since the days of John Hay, on the Open Door in China. They acquiesced in and sympathized with the Communist advance in China, promoted by Russian military advisors and Russian arms.

It is this position of power combined with the development of air power and the atomic bomb, which makes Russia today the greatest foreign threat to the security of this country since the days of the Revolutionary War.

We won the war, but the loss of peace will impose tremendous sacrifices on the American people in Army service and taxes, and seriously check progress in many fields of civilian welfare, where most of us have a tremendous interest.

It is also clear today that the Korean War itself was a direct result of the appeasement of Communism and the position taken by Acheson and Connally that the United States would certainly take no military action beyond Japan, Okinawa and the Philippines.

If in January, Acheson had announced our intention to prevent the spread of Communism in the Far East to the greatest extent of our ability, there would have been no Korean War, and the death and wounding of thousands of American boys would have been avoided.

The people are still disturbed at the strange unwillingness in some Administration circles to go all-out against Communism. They are disturbed at Acheson's flirting with the idea of recognizing Communist China, at his willingness to turn over the disposition of Formosa, clearly a Japanese peace treaty question, tothe United Nations. They are disturbed at the President's veto of the anti-Communist Bill.

If we are to expend American lives and billions of dollars throughout the world to prevent the spread of Communism, why not at least require Communist organizations in this country to register their members so that we may know where they are and from what source their propaganda comes.

The people realize, and are concerned, that the election of a rubber stamp Congress demanded by Mr. Truman and the Political Action Committee, would mean a continuation of present foreign policy, a vote of confidence in Mr. Acheson, and a continued pro-communist attitude in the foreign policy of the United States.

East Ringgold Bridge OKd

Pickaway County commissioner Tuesday decided to accept bids for work on a bridge on the East Ringgold-Northern Road in Walnut Township.

Deadline for submitting bids is noon on Dec. 5, the commissioners said, adding that the bids will be opened at 1:30 p. m. the same day.

The work will consist of building a substructure and approaches for the bridge.

The county chiefs also authorized Pickaway County engineering department to purchase a road grader from a Galion firm.

Woman Is Held In Tot's Death

FREMONT, Nov. 2—Mrs. Lula Ashton, 62-year-old Fremont farm woman, has pleaded guilty to first degree manslaughter in the death of Lynn Morris, 4, a county welfare department ward.

Police reported that Mrs. Ashton has been in jail since early September after the girl, placed in the home of Mrs. Ashton and her husband, died of injuries the woman admitted administering with a broomstick when she became angered because the girl would not wear shoes.

WASHINGTON REPORT

By SENATOR ROBERT A. TAFT

In spite of the successful conclusion of the Korean War, Americ n foreign policy remains the matter of greatest interest to the people in this congressional election. The Administration is tring to avoid any emphasis, before the election, on the sacrifices which the American people will be called upon to make because of the tremendous power of Soviet Russia—a power built up by the Administration's own mistakes at Potsdam and Yalta, and its strange sympathy for Communism in the Far East.

President Truman flies to Wake Island to shake hands with General MacArthur in order to associate himself with a victory produced by MacArthur's genius, and says nothing about the program which he will find necessary to proclaim after the November election.

But in the minds of the people everywhere is the thought that all of their young men are going to be drafted into the Army, upsetting their education and their program for life. There is the thought that these young men perhaps may face the tragedy of a Third World War.

In the background looms a tax burden even greater than we have ever faced before. In the domestic field the program of the Truman Administration has been blocked, and its dangerous effect in creating socialism can only be a warning, but the disastrous results of its foreign policy are with us and nothing has so much shaken the confidence of the people in President Truman and his advisers.

Whether they acquired a sympathy for Communism from Communists in high places in the government, or whether they were too dumb to see the results of their policy, Hopkins and Harriman at Yalta acted on the theory that Russia was a "peace-loving democracy." They let Stalin write the ticket. They established Russia in a position of power in Central Europe, in Berlin, Prague and Vienna.

* * *

THEY ACCEPTED promises to free Poland and the Baltic States when a child could have seen the falsity of those promises. They set Russia up in Manchuria, contrary to all American foreign policy which had been based, since the days of John Hay, on the Open Door in China. They acquiesced in and sympathized with the Communist advance in China, promoted by Russian military advisors and Russian arms.

It is this position of power combined with the development of air power and the atomic bomb, which makes Russia today the greatest foreign threat to the security of this country since the days of the Revolutionary War.

We won the war, but the loss of peace will impose tremendous sacrifices on the American people in Army service and taxes, and seriously check progress in many fields of civilian welfare, where most of us have a tremendous interest.

It is also clear today that the Korean War itself was a direct result of the appeasement of Communism and the position taken by Acheson and Connally that the United States would certainly take no military action beyond Japan, Okinawa and the Philippines.

If in January, Acheson had announced our intention to prevent the spread of Communism in the Far East to the greatest extent of our ability, there would have been no Korean War, and the death and wounding of thousands of American boys would have been avoided.

The people are still disturbed at the strange unwillingness in some Administration circles to go all-out against Communism. They are disturbed at Acheson's flirting with the idea of recognizing Communist China, at his willingness to turn over the disposition of Formosa, clearly a Japanese peace treaty question, tothe United Nations. They are disturbed at the President's veto of the anti-Communist Bill.

If we are to expend American lives and billions of dollars throughout the world to prevent the spread of Communism, why not at least require Communist organizations in this country to register their members so that we may know where they are and from what source their propaganda comes.

The people realize, and are concerned, that the election of a rubber stamp Congress demanded by Mr. Truman and the Political Action Committee, would mean a continuation of present foreign policy, a vote of confidence in Mr. Acheson, and a continued pro-communist attitude in the foreign policy of the United States.

Buckeyes Ready For Trip To Northwestern

COLUMBUS, Nov. 2 — The same Ohio State grid traveling squad, with one possible exception, will board the train tonight for Evanston, Ill., and the Northwestern tilt Saturday.

The exception in the 40 players making the trip may be End Dick Anderson. Coach Wes Fesler will decide after today's workout if the wingman's ailing knee is good enough to chance the Saturday action. Fesler said that if Anderson can't make the trip, he will choose an end from the junior varsity squad.

A crowd of 54,000 is expected to witness the game in Dyche Stadium Saturday.

The Bucks, who slaughtered Iowa 83-21 last Saturday, are highly favored for the Northwestern bout.

Arriving in Evanston tomorrow, the Ohio Staters will take to the practice field at 2 p. m. to work out the traveling kinks.

Dick Widdoes worked out in a sweat suit yesterday. Still bothered by a sore hip, he may be ready Saturday. Fred Bruney, Bob Demmel and Bernie Skvarka handled right defensive posts yesterday during pass defense practice.

Konstanty Gets MVP Selection

NEW YORK, Nov. 2 — Jim Konstanty, the phenomenal one-man gang relief artist who personally rescued the Philadelphia Phillies' first pennant in [illegible] years, was officially designated today as the National League's Most Valuable Player for 1950.

The bespectacled, solemn-faced 33-year-old righthander became the first relief pitcher in history ever to be chosen for the award. Konstanty compiled a total of 286 points from the votes of the Baseball Writers Association, to beat out Stan Musial perennial candidate for the honor, who received 158 points.

Sokolsky's

It is impossible to believe otherwise than that the editors of the Herald Tribune and Times book review magazines desire that this important book should not be read. Many libraries make their purchases on the basis of reviews in these publications and when a book is not noticed even unfavorably, when it is not even mentioned, its sale becomes extremely difficult.

Therefore, I am appealing to readers to buy this book, "Red Masquerade," to read it, and if they like it to recommend it to their local library committees.

It is worthwhile that in this era when we produced an Alger Hiss and a Judith Coplon, we also produced an Angela Calomiris. Although she never moved among the great in Washington, she served this country as valiantly and as dangerously as any soldier at the front in the worst of battle.

And to this she has added a book that even the most perfectionistic of reviewers cannot regard as a journalistic makeshift. Hers is a literary gift of high order and her book carries the reader from cover to cover.

Buckeyes Ready For Trip To Northwestern

COLUMBUS, Nov. 2 — The same Ohio State grid traveling squad, with one possible exception, will board the train tonight for Evanston, Ill., and the Northwestern tilt Saturday.

The exception in the 40 players making the trip may be End Dick Anderson. Coach Wes Fesler will decide after today's workout if the wingman's ailing knee is good enough to chance the Saturday action. Fesler said that if Anderson can't make the trip, he will choose an end from the junior varsity squad.

A crowd of 54,000 is expected to witness the game in Dyche Stadium Saturday.

The Bucks, who slaughtered Iowa 83-21 last Saturday, are highly favored for the Northwestern bout.

Arriving in Evanston tomorrow, the Ohio Staters will take to the practice field at 2 p. m. to work out the traveling kinks.

Dick Widdoes worked out in a sweat suit yesterday. Still bothered by a sore hip, he may be ready Saturday. Fred Bruney, Bob Demmel and Bernie Skvarka handled right defensive posts yesterday during pass defense practice.

Konstanty Gets MVP Selection

NEW YORK, Nov. 2 — Jim Konstanty, the phenomenal one-man gang relief artist who personally rescued the Philadelphia Phillies' first pennant in [illegible] years, was officially designated today as the National League's Most Valuable Player for 1950.

The bespectacled, solemn-faced 33-year-old righthander became the first relief pitcher in history ever to be chosen for the award. Konstanty compiled a total of 286 points from the votes of the Baseball Writers Association, to beat out Stan Musial, perennial candidate for the honor, who received 158 points.

It is impossible to believe otherwise than that the editors of the Herald Tribune and Times book review magazines desire that this important book should not be read. Many libraries make their purchases on the basis of reviews in these publications and when a book is not noticed even unfavorably, when it is not even mentioned, its sale becomes extremely difficult.

Therefore, I am appealing to readers to buy this book, "Red Masquerade," to read it, and if they like it to recommend it to their local library committees.

It is worthwhile that in this era when we produced an Alger Hiss and a Judith Coplon, we also produced an Angela Calomiris. Although she never moved among the great in Washington, she served this country as valiantly and as dangerously as any soldier at the front in the worst of battle.

And to this she has added a book that even the most perfectionistic of reviewers cannot regard as a journalistic makeshift. Hers is a literary gift of high order and her book carries the reader from cover to cover.

WEATHERMAN MAY HAVE SAY

Tigers Ready For Tussle Against Undefeated 'Cats

Old man weather may have a lot to say about who wins Thursday night when Westerville Wildcats invade the Circleville Tigers home football field.

The weatherman was frowning early Thursday as he let loose a drizzle to suggest that the Tigers may play their first "mud" game of the season.

However, local sports enthusiasts seemed in favor of the weatherman's scowl, pointing out that a muddy field probably would benefit the Tigers in the tilt.

Westerville's Wildcats will place an undefeated record on the block Thursday when they invade the once-beaten Tigers.

* * *

THE VISITORS will bring a light, fast team to the local battlefield, a team which would be hampered by a soggy field and poor footing.

The Tigers, on the other hand, boast power and weight in their drives, capable of using the ground plays to good advantage on almost any field.

Coach Steve Brudzinski said Thursday his CHS gridders are in good shape physically and that the whole team will dress.

During the last few games, at least one varsity veteran has been out of the lineup either with injuries or sickness. All of them are to be on hand for the Westerville encounter.

To date, the Westerville Wildcats have kept their record unblemished by ripping to wins over Marysville, Hilliards, Worthington, Grove City and Frankfort, while battling to a 7-7 deadlock against London.

Keynote to the visitors' attack will be speed and what is reported to be a good passing attack.

Featured for the Wildcats are its two lightweight halfbacks, D. Burwell and R. Loar, who combine their speed with their smallness to wriggle into paydirt.

* * *

BURWELL WEIGHS in at 145 pounds at left half, according to 'Cat Coach Jim Scarfpin, while Loar will tip the scales at about 148 pounds.

On the whole, Westerville's line is reported to average only 153 pounds per man while its backfield averages under the 150-pound mark.

Circleville, relying on the Westerville weight figures, will hold nearly a 20-pound weight advantage in the encounter. But its added weight may make it slower than its undefeated opponent.

The Tigers also will have another advantage over the 'Cats, that in the scoring department.

In seven games to date the CHS'ers have racked up a total of 279 points for an average of 39.8 points per game while allowing the opposition only 96 points for 13.7 points per game.

Westerville has scored only 114 points this season in six games for an average of 19 points per encounter. However, it has allowed its opponents only 29 points in the six contests, an average of but 4.8 points per game.

In addition to the football game, which promises to be a good scrap, local fans also will be treated to another feature.

Two bands are to perform during the evening — the snappy 65-piece Circleville high school marching band and the marching band from Westerville high school.

The bands are expected to merge on the field prior to the game for flag-raising ceremonies, while each is to perform during the halftime intermission.

Circleville's band has several special numbers and formations in store for the fans. Included will be a number featuring the school's proposed $475,000 building bond issue.

* * *

THE HIGHLIGHT of the performance, however, will be a show honoring the eight senior boys and girls of the band who will be playing for their last CHS football game.

The football game is slated to begin at 8 p. m. Thursday on the local gridiron.

Probable starting lineups for the contest follow:

Circleville
LE—Mancini.
LT—Gillis or McClarren.
LG—Kerns.
C—Stout.
RG—Thomas.
RT—Cockrell.
RE—Coffland.

LG—Gallogly.
C—Sanford.
RG—Martin or McPherson.
RT—Kennedy.
RE—Roberts.
QB—Foor.
LH—Burwell.
RH—Loar.
FB—Billman.

Circleville Chamber of Commerce will pass the bucket Thursday during the Circleville-Westerville football game. Fans attending the game will be asked to cover the shiny bottoms of the buckets with dirty old money, which will be used for purchase of new uniforms for the 65-piece Circleville high school band.

General Manager For Bums May Be Selected Today

NEW YORK, Nov. 2 — The Brooklyn Dodgers today are expected to name Fresco Thompson to Branch Rickey's old job as general manager of the club's far-flung baseball empire.

Walter F. O'Malley, president of the club and who, with Mrs. John L. Smith, owns 75 percent of the stock, said recently that he intended to promote men within the Dodgers' own organization.

This was taken to mean that O'Malley also would pick a new manager for the club from within the organization. However, the decision on a successor to Burt Shotton may not be announced for some time.

Thompson is known to favor Hal (Peewee) Reese, the Dodgers' veteran shortstop and captain, for the managerial post. But Reese appears reluctant to take the job, even if offered.

Reese believes he has several years of active playing left and does not want to burden himself with the double task of player-manager.

However, Mrs. Reese would like to see Peewee give up playing because he has been subject to injuries in recent years.

* * *

IF REESE DOES not get the job, the next likeliest candidate would be Dixie Walker, who probably was the most popular player in Brooklyn the Dodgers ever had.

Thompson has been with the Dodgers for several years in varying capacities. He has been in charge of field operations for Rickey and knows every player in the Dodger chain.

Fresco also is familiar with all plans and operations and prospective deals that Rickey had on the fire before selling out his Dodger stock for more than $1 million.

Furthermore, he knows baseball from all angles, and has the respect of the players, as only a successful big leaguer can have.

Sailors Hoping To Bump Irish

CLEVELAND, Nov. 2—Navy's Midshipmen, eyeing an upset over a wobbling Notre Dame eleven here Saturday, drilled on pass defense today in an effort to stop the great Bob Williams-Jim Mutscheller combination.

The 195-pound Mutscheller, Irish end, has broken almost every Notre Dame pass-catching record for a single season, even though the Irish have played only five of their nine games this Fall.

The lanky end caught six scoring passes, giving him credit for exactly half of Notre Dame's touchdown total. The former record for touchdown passes was set by Leon Hart last year.

CHS Juniors End Season With Win

Sabine, Davis Star In Tilt

Circleville high school's reserve Tiger football team closed its 1950 season here Wednesday with a 14-0 victory over invading Hillsboro Papooses.

The final win gave the junior Tigers a season record of five victories in six starts, while having whitewashed its last four opponents.

Albert Sabine and Fred Davis were the key players during the final tilt for the juniors.

Sabine, playing defensive fullback, hauled down a Papoose pass in the first quarter of the contest and raced 15 yards into the end zone to give the locals their first score of the game.

* * *

FRED DAVIS, right halfback, took the ball on a direct handoff in the final quarter of the contest to twist and squirm 30 yards through the junior Hillsboro team for the final score.

Seven of the junior team players were advanced to the varsity following the final tilt.

Coach Dick West of the reserve squad said Mike Brown, Robin Jones, Clyde Cook, Ralph Anderson, Jim Shaffer, Paul Hill and Ted Davis have been promoted to the varsity squad. Their work with the varsity is to begin Monday, West said.

In the second and third quarters the local reservists dominated the play and drove to two other touchdowns, only to have them called back because of penalties.

A fire across the street from the football field diverted attention as the second half got underway but the youngsters went back to their positions as the smoke began to fade.

Paul Hill, fullback for the junior Tigers, plunged over for the first extra point of the game following Sabine's touchdown, while Quarterback Tom Elsea sneaked over for the second conversion following Davis' 30-yard romp.

A total of 29 boys played during the final tilt. They will be guests with the varsity during the annual Circleville Booster Club banquet later this month.

CIRCLEVILLE lost its opening game of the season to Lancaster Golden Gale juniors by a one touchdown margin, then followed through with victories during its next five contests.

During its last four games the local juniors have held their opponents scoreless.

For the record, the Circleville reserves tallied a total of 124 points during their highly successful campaign while allowing their opponents to score only 40 points.

Complete season record for the team, followed by the names of all of the team members, is:

WEATHERMAN MAY HAVE SAY

Tigers Ready For Tussle Against Undefeated 'Cats

Old man weather may have a lot to say about who wins Thursday night when Westerville Wildcats invade the Circleville Tigers home football field.

The weatherman was frowning early Thursday as he let loose a drizzle to suggest that the Tigers may play their first "mud" game of the season.

However, local sports enthusiasts seemed in favor of the weatherman's scowl, pointing out that a muddy field probably would benefit the Tigers in the tilt.'

Westerville's Wildcats will place an undefeated record on the block Thursday when they invade the once-beaten Tigers.

* * *

THE VISITORS will bring a light, fast team to the local battlefield, a team which would be hampered by a soggy field and poor footing.

The Tigers, on the other hand, boast power and weight in their drives, capable of using the ground plays to good advantage on almost any field.

Coach Steve Brudzinski said Thursday his CHS gridders are in good shape physically and that the whole team will dress.

During the last few games, at least one varsity veteran has been out of the lineup either with injuries or sickness. All of them are to be on hand for the Westerville encounter.

To date, the Westerville Wildcats have kept their record unblemished by ripping to wins over Marysville, Hilliards, Worthington, Grove City and Frankfort, while battling to a 7-7 deadlock against London.

Keynote to the visitors' attack will be speed and what is reported to be a good passing attack.

Featured for the Wildcats are its two lightweight halfbacks, D. Burwell and R. Loar, who combine their speed with their smallness to wriggle into paydirt.

* * *

BURWELL WEIGHS in at 145 pounds at left half, according to 'Cat Coach Jim Scarfpin, while Loar will tip the scales at about 148 pounds.

On the whole, Westerville's line is reported to average only 153 pounds per man while its backfield averages under the 150-pound mark.

Circleville, relying on the Westerville weight figures, will hold nearly a 20-pound weight advantage in the encounter. But its added weight may make it slower than its undefeated opponent.

The Tigers also will have another advantage over the 'Cats, that in the scoring department.

In seven games to date the CHS'ers have racked up a total of 279 points for an average of 39.8 points per game while allowing the opposition only 96 points for 13.7 points per game.

Westerville has scored only 114 points this season in six games for an average of 19 points per encounter. However, it has allowed its opponents only 29 points in the six contests, an average of but 4.8 points per game.

Circleville Chamber of Commerce will pass the bucket Thursday during the Circleville-Westerville football game. Fans attending the game will be asked to cover the shiny bottoms of the buckets with dirty old money, which will be used for purchase of new uniforms for the 65-piece Circleville high school band.

In addition to the football game, which promises to be a good scrap, local fans also will be treated to another feature.

Two bands are to perform during the evening — the snappy 65-piece Circleville high school marching band and the marching band from Westerville high school.

The bands are expected to merge on the field prior to the game for flag-raising ceremonies, while each is to perform during the halftime intermission.

Circleville's band has several special numbers and formations in store for the fans. Included will be a number featuring the school's proposed $475,000 building bond issue.

* * *

THE HIGHLIGHT of the performance, however, will be a show honoring the eight senior boys and girls of the band who will be playing for their last CHS football game.

The football game is slated to begin at 8 p. m. Thursday on the local gridiron.

Probable starting lineups for the contest follow:

General Manager For Bums May Be Selected Today

NEW YORK, Nov. 2 — The Brooklyn Dodgers today are expected to name Fresco Thompson to Branch Rickey's old job as general manager of the club's far-flung baseball empire.

Walter F. O'Malley, president of the club and who, with Mrs. John L. Smith, owns 75 percent of the stock, said recently that he intended to promote men within the Dodgers' own organization.

This was taken to mean that O'Malley also would pick a new manager for the club from within the organization. However, the decision on a successor to Burt Shotton may not be announced for some time.

Thompson is known to favor Hal (Peewee) Reese, the Dodgers' veteran shortstop and captain, for the managerial post. But Reese appears reluctant to take the job, even if offered.

Reese believes he has several years of active playing left and does not want to burden himself with the double task of player-manager.

However, Mrs. Reese would like to see Peewee give up playing because he has been subject to injuries in recent years.

* * *

IF REESE DOES not get the job, the next likeliest candidate would be Dixie Walker, who probably was the most popular player in Brooklyn the Dodgers ever had.

Thompson has been with the Dodgers for several years in varying capacities. He has been in charge of field operations for Rickey and knows every player in the Dodger chain.

Fresco also is familiar with all plans and operations and prospective deals that Rickey had on the fire before selling out his Dodger stock for more than $1 million.

Furthermore, he knows baseball from all angles, and has the respect of the players, as only a successful big leaguer can have.

Sailors Hoping To Bump Irish

CLEVELAND, Nov. 2—Navy's Midshipmen, eyeing an upset over a wobbling Notre Dame eleven here Saturday, drilled on pass defense today in an effort to stop the great Bob Williams-Jim Mutscheller combination.

The 195-pound Mutscheller, Irish end, has broken almost every Notre Dame pass-catching record for a single season, even though the Irish have played only five of their nine games this Fall.

The lanky end caught six scoring passes, giving him credit for exactly half of Notre Dame's touchdown total. The former record for touchdown passes was set by Leon Hart last year.

CHS Juniors End Season With Win

Sabine, Davis Star In Tilt

Circleville high school's reserve Tiger football team closed its 1950 season here Wednesday with a 14-0 victory over invading Hillsboro Papooses.

The final win gave the junior Tigers a season record of five victories in six starts, while having whitewashed its last four opponents.

Albert Sabine and Fred Davis were the key players during the final tilt for the juniors.

Sabine, playing defensive fullback, hauled down a Papoose pass in the first quarter of the contest and raced 15 yards into the end zone to give the locals their first score of the game.

* * *

FRED DAVIS, right halfback, took the ball on a direct handoff in the final quarter of the contest to twist and squirm 30 yards through the junior Hillsboro team for the final score.

Seven of the junior team players were advanced to the varsity following the final tilt.

Coach Dick West of the reserve squad said Mike Brown, Robin Jones, Clyde Cook, Ralph Anderson, Jim Shaffer, Paul Hill and Ted Davis have been promoted to the varsity squad. Their work with the varsity is to begin Monday, West said.

In the second and third quarters the local reservists dominated the play and drove to two other touchdowns, only to have them called back because of penalties.

A fire across the street from the football field diverted attention as the second half got underway but the youngsters went back to their positions as the smoke began to fade.

Paul Hill, fullback for the junior Tigers, plunged over for the first extra point of the game following Sabine's touchdown, while Quarterback Tom Elsea sneaked over for the second conversion following Davis' 30-yard romp.

A total of 29 boys played during the final tilt. They will be guests with the varsity during the annual Circleville Booster Club banquet later this month.

* * *

CIRCLEVILLE lost its opening game of the season to Lancaster Golden Gale juniors by a one touchdown margin, then followed through with victories during its next five contests.

During its last four games the local juniors have held their opponents scoreless.

For the record, the Circleville reserves tallied a total of 124 points during their highly successful campaign while allowing their opponents to score only 40 points.

Complete season record for the team, followed by the names of all of the team members, is:

Applicants Sought For Police Exam

Only One Signup Noted So Far

Circleville Safety Department is looking for more applicants to take civil service exams for city policemen on Nov. 13.

According to Safety Director C. O. Leist, only one application has been received so far.

"It's the draft that's making it hard for us to get applicants," said Leist. "They're having the same trouble in Columbus, I understand. It's a tough problem. We've got to have policemen."

The safety director explained that the police department is shy one man now, will lose another to Selective Service this month.

* * *

"THAT MEANS we'll have to have an eligible list big enough to pick two men from," said Leist. "According to civil service rules, we'll have to have five men on the eligible list in order to select two."

The law requires applicants to pay a $1 fee to take the exam, which will be held in council chamber of City Hall at 7 p. m. The applicant must be a resident voter, must be at least five feet six inches tall and weigh not less than 155 pounds. He must be beteen 21 and 29 years old.

Leist said the salary of a patrolman is $200 per month. Application to take the exam may be obtained from his office on the first floor of City Hall.

The safety director added that information concerning the exam may be obtained from him or from members of the civil service commission. They are Luther Bower, chairman; J. S. Barr, vice-chairman; and V. L. Hawkes, secretary.

Applicants Sought For Police Exam

Only One Signup Noted So Far

Circleville Safety Department is looking for more applicants to take civil service exams for city policemen on Nov. 13.

According to Safety Director C. O. Leist, only one application has been received so far.

"It's the draft that's making it hard for us to get applicants," said Leist. "They're having the same trouble in Columbus, I understand. It's a tough problem. We've got to have policemen."

The safety director explained that the police department is shy one man now, will lose another to Selective Service this month.

* * *

"THAT MEANS we'll have to have an eligible list big enough to pick two men from," said Leist. "According to civil service rules, we'll have to have five men on the eligible list in order to select two."

The law requires applicants to pay a $1 fee to take the exam, which will be held in council chamber of City Hall at 7 p. m. The applicant must be a resident voter, must be at least five feet six inches tall and weigh not less than 155 pounds. He must be beteen 21 and 29 years old.

Leist said the salary of a patrolman is $200 per month. Application to take the exam may be obtained from his office on the first floor of City Hall.

The safety director added that information concerning the exam may be obtained from him or from members of the civil service commission. They are Luther Bower, chairman; J. S. Barr, vice-chairman; and V. L. Hawkes, secretary.

Safety First Brings Trouble

LONG BEACH, Cal., Nov. 2—A motorist made an illegal left turn onto Pacific Coast Highway from American Avenue and Long Beach Traffic Officer Robert E. Cleveland started to write a ticket.

"What's your name?" he asked.

"Safety First," was the reply.

"Let's see your driver's license, wise guy," said the officer.

There it was. Safety First, 56, of Inglewood, Cal.
